State Socialist Poland deconstructs the public performance of technological innovation and imagined modernity in relation to the home technologies market in late state socialist Poland While doing so Patryk Wasiak sheds light on the politics that accompanied the modes of representations of the new innovative consumer technologies in the public sphere and the agenda of actors who performed such representations This book argues that the central form of the mediation of home technologies was the projection of specific sociotechnical imaginaries that included visions of how these technologies would have an impact on the creation of a desirable future social order and economy Later such imaginaries were re negotiated and challenged as infeasible or undesirable The author demonstrates how expert groups the industry lobby research institutes and non governmental organizations attempted to secure their role as intermediary actors in order to have a tangible impact on not only the production of commodities but more importantly on the definition of which commodity or a product feature is modern and innovative and which is obsolete Soviet Life ,1971
