Presenting Persis Khambatta Sherilyn Connelly, 2021-04-26 In 1965, 18-year-old Persis Khambatta became the third woman to be crowned Miss India. After moving to England and then to the United States, she found worldwide fame in the first Star Trek movie in 1979 and in 1980 she became the first Indian presenter at the Academy Awards. The American film industry seemed never to forgive Khambatta for being a non-white woman who refused to do nude scenes. After failing to sustain a career as either a producer or a performer, she achieved a triumph before her sudden death in 1998 with the publication of her book Pride of India: A Tribute to Miss India. Based on contemporary news articles and primary sources, this first biography examines Khambatta's Hindi and English language film and television work and demonstrates the many ways she was ahead of her time as a filmmaker, feminist, and humanitarian.

Teleliteracy David Bianculli, 2000-07-01 The phenomena of television is examined from the historical context and television as an art form to television in various aspects of modern society such as TV in the classroom and on the battlefield.

Looking-Glass Wars: Spies on British Screens since 1960 Alan Burton, 2018-01-31 Looking Glass Wars: Spies on British Screens since 1960 is a detailed historical and critical overview of espionage in British film and television in the important period since 1960. From that date, the British spy screen was transformed under the influence of the tremendous success of James Bond in the cinema, the spy thriller, and of the new style spy writing of John le Carr and Len Deighton. The espionage story in the 1960s there developed a popular cycle of spy thrillers in the cinema and on television. The new study looks in detail at the cycle which in previous work has been largely neglected in favour of the James Bond films. The study also brings new attention to espionage on British television and popular secret agent series such as Spy Trap, Quiller, and The Sandbaggers. It also gives attention to the more realistic representation of spying in the film and television adaptations of le Carr and Deighton and other dramas with a more serious intent. In addition, there is wholly original attention given to nostalgic spy fictions on screen, adaptations of classic stories of espionage which were popular in the late 1970s and through the 1980s, and to historical spy fiction dramas which treated real cases of espionage and their characters, most notably the notorious Cambridge Spies. Detailed attention is also given to the secret state thriller, a cycle of paranoid screen dramas in the 1980s which portrayed the intelligence services in a conspiratorial light, best understood as a reaction to excessive official secrecy and anxieties about an unregulated security service. The study is brought up to date with an examination of screen espionage in Britain since the end of the Cold War. The approach is empirical and historical. The study examines the production and reception, literary and historical contexts of the films and dramas. It is the first detailed overview of the British spy screen in its crucial period since the 1960s and provides fresh attention to spy films, series, and serials never previously considered Congressional Record United States. Congress,1980 Potboilers Jerry Palmer,2008-02-21

Potboilers looks at the many forms of popular narrative in print film and TV It considers the ways in they have been analysed in literary criticism sociology communications media and cultural studies The book introduces and summarizes two decades of debate about mass produced fictions and their position within popular culture It assesses the methods that have been used in these debates focussing both on narrative analysis and the communications process It explores generic conventions the role of commercial strategies and the nature of the audience with reference to crime fiction soap opera romance and TV sitcom Distinctions between high and low culture have relegated many popular forms to the trash can of great literature This book takes stock of the methods and concepts used to analyse popular culture and argues for a non elitist approach to the study of literature film and television
