Shropshire Postcards From The Past:

Shropshire Postcards from the Past Ray Farlow, David Trumper, 2005-09 Shropshire is a large inland county that has been influenced by countless generations from the Celts Romans Saxons and Normans through to the present day Towards the end of the 19th century and into the 20th century many enterprising national and local photographers travelled around the country taking thousands of photographs of people places and events that were then turned into postcards Thankfully many of these cards still survive tucked away in old albums or stored in attics and at the back of drawers and cupboards They give us a glimpse of how life was at this time and how things have altered during the last century as progress has accelerated The area covered in this volume is south of Shrewsbury and roughly west of a line from the county town down through Ludlow It is a land containing a huge variety of scenery rich fertile valleys open barren moors and heathland undulating foothills to the heights of the Long Mynd and the boulder strewn Stiperstones Within this section there is the beautiful town of Ludlow as well as the smaller market towns of Bishop s Castle Clun Craven Arms and Church Stretton This volume of many previously unseen postcard views of the county is sure to appeal to anyone with an interest in this beautiful corner of the world

Shropshire Postcards from the Past Ray Farlow, David Trumper, 2006 Appealing to anyone with an interest in Shropshire's local history the photographs in this title are taken from Ray Farlow's unique collection of old picture postcards and show the buildings countryside and the lives of the people who lived in the area long before the new town of Telford was envisaged

Postcards from the Western Front Mark Connelly,2022-09-15 Visitors to the battlefields of France and Belgium expressed pain and anguish pride and nostalgia and wonder and surprise at what they saw Postcards from the Western Front chronicles the many ways in which these sites were perceived and commemorated by British people both during the First World War and in the twenty years following the Armistice Mark Connelly s definitive and engaging study of the former Western Front examines how different and distinctive sub communities regional ethnic and religious civilian and armed forces influenced the depth and strength of the visiting public s relationship with the battlefields all the while comparing and contrasting this relationship with the viewpoint of the French and Belgian inhabitants of the devastated regions Connelly draws from a vast archive a number of interlocking themes including the lingering presence of the battlefields in the British domestic imagination the often fraught experience of visiting the battlefields memorials and cemeteries functioning as part of a historical testimony to wartime realities and the interactions between visitors and the people living in these former fighting zones Focusing on French and Belgian sites Connelly nevertheless provides insight into other major battlefields fought over by troops from the British Empire Extensively illustrated with black and white photographs Postcards from the Western Front offers a groundbreaking perspective on landscapes that rarely left anyone whether tourist inhabitant veteran or pilgrim unmoved The Local Historian ,2001 Issues for autumn 1961 include the Standing Conference for Local History Bulletin
