The Forest House Joelle Fraser,2013-03-12 Following divorce Fraser resolves to stay in the small mountain town where her son's father lives but it soon proves too claustrophobic She finds relief a world away in a small house up a winding road tucked so far into the forest one forgets it is technically still in town It's in this small and remote forest house both buffered and enveloped by endless wilderness where she slowly rebuilds The life she carves out for herself and son Dylan is harsh at times and lyrical at others The physical landscape feeds her with its trees and animals firewood barbed wire and rugged unforgiving demands while her internal self brims over with favorite passages culled from beloved books and also with immense guilt about pulling her son into the confusing and messy reality of divorce Of course it is complicated reflection as our lives often are No moment of reveling goes unpunished by self reproach how dare she be happy for the quiet afforded her when Dylan is with his dad Is it okay to be happy Shouldn't she be sadder And her past is not past at all Her history and the history of her family are very much alive in her and memories crop up unbidden providing hints of explanation that both prop her up and damn her It is when all these gremlins hound her that she turns to what is outside her door This is a literary gem for anyone who has navigated the treacherous waters of loss and rebuilt a life for those who love an expanse of sky and for those who carry books in their mind
