Ratzan, 1998 The announcement that BSE might cause a fatal human disease Creutzfeldt Jacob disease CJD triggered enormous media attention public alarm and government wrangling that threatened the future of European integration As Scott Ratzan argues It is my belief that the BSE crisis represents a quintessential case that will go down in history as the Exxon Valdez Union Carbide s Bhopal accident and other such cases of interdisciplinary study This book offers lessons learned from the crisis with contributions from experts with different viewpoints veterinarians Eurocrats public relations experts politicians policy makers journalists and representatives of the beef industry It also offers a compilation of the key reports from governmental bodies as a case study in policy making scientific health discovery and dissemination of information as well as looking at the issues from the perspective of psychology and media studies Current Controversies in the Biological Sciences Karen F. Greif, Jon F.

Merz, 2007-02-23 In recent years advances in biological science and technology have outpaced policymakers attempts to deal with them Current Controversies in the Biological Sciences examines the ways in which the federal government uses scientific information in reaching policy decisions providing case studies of the interactions between science and government on different biomedical biological and environmental issues These case studies document a broad range of complex issues in science policy from the Human Genome Project to tobacco regulation and provide an accessible overview of both the science behind the issues and the policy making process The cases illustrate the different ways in which science and politics intersect in policy decisions as well as the different forms policy itself may take including not only regulatory action but the lack of regulation Among the topics examined are public and private research funding as seen in gene patenting reluctance to regulate even when a product has been proven unhealthy as in the case of tobacco a comparison of U S and international policy responses to genetically modified organisms and the competing interests at play in air pollution policy Each chapter includes shorter side essays on related topics for example essays on issues raised by the SARS epidemic accompany the detailed case study of the public health response to the anthrax laced mail received in the weeks after 9 11 This clear and readable introduction to controversial issues in the biological sciences will be a valuable resource for students of science policy and bioethics and for professionals in industry government and nongovernmental organizations who need background on emerging issues in the biological sciences

The Politics of Precaution David Vogel, 2012-04-29 The Politics of Precaution examines the politics of consumer and environmental risk regulation in the United States and Europe over the last five decades explaining why America and Europe have often regulated a wide range of similar risks differently It finds that between 1960 and 1990 American health safety and environmental regulations were more stringent risk averse comprehensive and innovative than those adopted in Europe But since around 1990 the book shows global regulatory leadership has shifted to Europe What explains this striking reversal David Vogel takes an in depth comparative look at European and American policies toward a range of consumer and environmental risks including vehicle air pollution ozone depletion climate change beef and milk hormones genetically modified agriculture antibiotics in animal feed pesticides cosmetic safety and hazardous substances in electronic products He traces how concerns over such risks and pressure on political leaders to do something about them have risen among the European public but declined among Americans Vogel explores how policymakers in Europe have grown supportive of more stringent regulations while those in the United States have become sharply polarized along partisan lines And as European policymakers have grown more willing to regulate risks on precautionary grounds increasingly skeptical American policymakers have called for higher levels of scientific certainty before imposing additional regulatory controls on business

Remaking Participation Jason Chilvers, Matthew Kearnes, 2015-11-02 Changing relations between science and democracy and controversies over issues such as climate change energy transitions genetically modified organisms and smart technologies have led to a rapid rise in new forms of public participation and citizen engagement While most existing approaches adopt fixed meanings of participation and are consumed by questions of method or critiquing the possible limits of democratic engagement this book offers new insights that rethink public engagements with science innovation and environmental issues as diverse emergent and in the making Bringing together leading scholars on science and democracy working between science and technology studies political theory geography sociology and anthropology the volume develops relational and co productionist approaches to studying and intervening in spaces of participation New empirical insights into the making construction circulation and effects of participation across cultures are illustrated through examples ranging from climate change and energy to nanotechnology and mundane technologies from institutionalised deliberative processes to citizen led innovation and activism and from the global north to global south This new way of seeing participation in science and democracy opens up alternative paths for reconfiguring and remaking participation in more experimental reflexive anticipatory and responsible ways This ground breaking book is essential reading for scholars and students of participation across the critical social sciences and beyond as well as those seeking to build more transformative participatory practices

Transatlantic Policymaking in an Age of Austerity Flor Aarts,2004-11-11 Transatlantic Policymaking in an Age of Austerity integrates the study of politics and public policy across a broad spectrum of regulatory and social welfare policies in the United States and several nations of Western Europe The editors and a sterling list of contributors look at policymaking in the 1990s through the present providing a comparative politics framework stressing both parallel development and the differences between and among the nations Similar prevailing ideas and political factors can be identified and transatlantic comparisons made providing for a clearer understanding of the policymaking process Faith in regulated markets and the burden of rising welfare costs are concerns found on both sides of the Atlantic Western democracies also share political climates colored by economic austerity low trust in government pressures from interest groups and a sharply divided electorate Because of differing political processes and differing policy starting points a variety of disparate policy decisions have resulted Real world policymaking in the areas of welfare health labor immigration reform disability rights consumer and environmental regulation administrative reforms and corporate governance are compared Ultimately the last decade is best characterized as one of drift sluggish changes with little real innovation and much default to the private sector In general policymakers on both sides of the ocean constrained by economic necessity have been unable to produce policy outcomes that satisfy the key segments of the electorate The contributors examine the United States Great Britain France and Germany as well as a number of other European countries and study the European Union itself as a policymaking institution Transatlantic Policymaking in an Age of Austerity distills the prominent issues politics and roles played by governmental institutions into a new understanding of the dynamics of policymaking in and among transatlantic nations Planning Sustainability Michael Kenny,James Meadowcroft,2002-01-31 Environmental sustainability has become one of the most salient issues on the policy agenda of nation states This book argues that planning is seldom credited by advocates of environmental politics The authors leading scholars in the field explore the relationship between environmental sustainability one of the most important innovations in recent political discourse and planning an idea which has slipped from public attention recently Understanding Consumers of Food Products Lynn Frewer,Hans Van Trijp,2006-12-22 In order for food businesses scientists and policy makers to develop successful products services and policies it is essential that they understand food consumers and how they decide which products to buy Food consumer behaviour is the result of various factors including the motivations of different consumers the attributes of specific foods and the environment in which food choices occur Recognising diversity between individual consumers different stages of life and different cultural contexts is increasingly important as markets become increasingly diverse and international The book begins with a comprehensive introduction and analysis of the key drivers of consumer food choices such as the environment and sensory product features Part two examines the role of consumers attitudes towards quality and marketing and their views on food preparation and technology Part three covers cultural and individual differences in food choice as well as addressing potentially influential factors such as age and gender Important topics such as public health and methods to change consumers preferences for unhealthy foods are discussed in part four The final section concludes with advice on developing coherent safety policies and the consumers responsibility for food production and consumption Understanding consumers of food products is a standard reference for all those in the food industry concerned with product development and regulation Develop an understanding of buyer behaviour to assist developing successful products Recognise the diversity between consumers and learn how to cater for their needs Covers cultural and individual differences in food choice Risk Management in Post-Trust Societies Ragnar Löfstedt,2009 A thought provoking and invaluable book for anyone who cares about risk communication and management in the 21st century Anna Jung Director General European Food Information Council Professor Ragnar L fstedt has once again produced a most interesting book on risk management and trust well based on theory and built on empirical findings Mikael Karlsson President Swedish Society for Nature Conservation Highlights the difficult balancing task facing risk regulators Regulatory inaction against real risks can undermine public trust However exaggerated responses to risks can also jeopardize r
