Rethinking Power Relations in Indonesia Michaela Haug, Martin Rössler, Anna-Teresa Grumbly, 2016-07-15 Since colonial rule the island of Java served as Indonesia's imagined centre and prime example of development while the Outer Islands were constructed as the state's marginalised periphery Recent processes of democratisation and regional autonomy however have significantly changed the power relations that once produced the marginality of the Outer Islands This book explores processes of political economic and cultural transformations in Indonesia emphasizing their implications for centre periphery relations from the perspective of the archipelago's margins Structured along three central themes the book first provides theoretical contributions to the understanding of marginality in Indonesia The second part focuses on political transformation processes and their implications for the Outer Islands The third section investigates the dynamics caused by economic changes on Indonesia's periphery Chapters written by experts in the field offer examples from various regions which demonstrate how power relations between centre and periphery are getting challenged contested and reshaped The book fills a gap in the literature by analysing the implications of the recent transformation processes for the construction of marginality on Indonesia's Outer Islands

Financial Fragility and Instability in Indonesia Yasuyuki Matsumoto, 2007-01-24 This highly relevant study provides an incisive analysis of a critical phase in recent East Asian financial history exploring the underlying causes of the financial crisis that struck Indonesia during the second half of 1997 Matsumoto's extensive commercial experience in Indonesian finance during these critical years allows him to skilfully argue that the roots of the crisis lay in the period of capital liberalization undertaken during the boom years from 1994 to 1997 which encouraged the development of fragile and unstable financial structures involving increased corporate leverage reliance on external debt and the introduction of riskier and more complicated financial instruments and transactions In depth fieldwork data and four detailed case studies illuminate the microeconomic foundations of the crisis showing how Indonesian capitalists sought to liquidate their Indonesian assets without losing control of their corporate empires by taking advantage of increased access to foreign loans and complex financial re engineering actions which ultimately precipitated instability and crisis throughout the entire financial system Finally it reflects upon the policy implications of this episode putting forward the case for comprehensive capital controls for open and developing economies until they establish appropriate financial institutions to monitor and manage the level of indebtedness and the volatility of capitalists behaviour

The Politics of Religion in Indonesia Michel Picard, Rémy Madinier, 2011-05-13 Indonesia is a remarkable case study for religious politics While not being a theocratic country it is not secular either with the Indonesian state officially defining what constitutes religion and every citizen needing to be affiliated to one of them This book focuses on Java and Bali and the interesting comparison of two neighbouring societies shaped by two different religions Islam and Hinduism The book examines the appropriation by the peoples of Java and Bali of the idea of religion through a dialogic process of indigenization of universalist religions and universalization of indigenous religions It looks at the tension that exists between proponents of local world views and indigenous belief systems and those who deny those local traditions as qualifying as a religion This tension plays a leading part in the construction of an Indonesian religious identity recognized by the state The book is of interest to students and scholars of Southeast Asia religious studies and the anthropology and sociology of religion

Community, Environment and Local Governance in Indonesia Carol Warren, John F. McCarthy, 2012-09-10 This book explores the forces reconfiguring local resource governance in Indonesia since 1998 drawing together original field research undertaken in a decade of dramatic political change Case studies from across Indonesia's diverse cultural and ecological landscapes focus on the most significant resource sectors agriculture fisheries forestry mining and tourism providing a rare in depth view of the dynamics shaping social and environmental outcomes in these varied contexts Debates surrounding the tragedy of the commons and environmental governance have focused on institutional considerations of how to craft resource management arrangements in order to further the policy objectives of economic efficiency social equity and environmental sustainability The studies in this volume reveal the complexity of resource security issues affecting local communities and user groups in Indonesia as they engage with wider institutional frameworks in a context driven simultaneously by decentralizing and globalizing forces Through ground up investigations of how local groups with different cultural backgrounds and resource bases are responding to the greater autonomy afforded by Indonesia's new political constellation the authors appraise the prospects for rearticulating governance regimes toward a more equitable and sustainable commonweal This volume offers valuable insights into questions of import to scholars as well as policy makers concerned with decentralized governance and sustainable resource management

Law and Religion in Indonesia Melissa Crouch, 2013-11-12 Understanding and managing inter religious relations particularly between Muslims and Christians presents a challenge for states around the world This book investigates legal disputes between religious communities in the world's largest majority Muslim democratic country Indonesia It considers how the interaction between state and religion has influenced relations between religious communities in the transition to democracy The book presents original case studies based on empirical field research of court disputes in West Java a majority Muslim province with a history of radical Islam These include criminal court cases as well as cases of judicial review relating to disputes concerning religious education permits for religious buildings and the crime of blasphemy The book argues that the democratic law reform process has been influenced by radical Islamists because of the politicization of religion under democracy and the persistence of fears of Christianization It finds that disputes have been localized through the decentralization of power and exacerbated by the central government's ambivalent attitude towards radical Islamists who disregard the rule of law. Examining the challenge facing governments to accommodate minorities and manage religious pluralism, the book furthers understanding of state religion relations in the Muslim world. This accessible and engaging book is of interest to students and scholars of law and society in Southeast Asia as well as Islam and the state and the legal regulation of religious diversity.

The Technological State in Indonesia Sulfikar Amir, 2012-11-12 Using a historical sociology approach, this book illustrates the formation of the technological state in Indonesia during the New Order period 1966-1998. It explores the nexus between power, high technology development, and authoritarianism situated in the Southeast Asian context. The book discusses how the New Order regime shifted from the developmental state to the technological state, which was characterized by a desire for technological supremacy. The process resulted in the establishment of a host of technological institutions and the undertaking of large-scale high-tech programs. Shedding light on the political dimension of socio-technological transformation, this book looks at the relationship between authoritarian politics and high technology development and examines how effectively technology serves to sustain legitimacy of an authoritarian power. It explores multiple features of the Indonesian technological state, covering the ideology of development, the politics of technocracy, the institutional structure, and the material and symbolic embodiments of high technology, and goes on to discuss the impact of globalization on the technological state. The book is an important contribution to studies on Southeast Asian Politics, Development, and Science Technology and Society (STS).

Corruption and Law in Indonesia Simon Butt, 2017-05-31 Indonesia has transformed from one of South East Asia's most repressive and centralised political systems to its most decentralised and democratic. Despite these obstacles, still remain that hinder Indonesia achieving the rule of law, and in particular, the country is consistently ranked as having one of the highest levels of corruption in the world. This book assesses Indonesia's anti-corruption reforms over the past decade, focusing on the Anti-corruption Commission (KPK) and the Anti-corruption Court (ACC). The book discusses how both institutions have been largely successful since they began operating in 2004. Before 2008, the KPK and ACC largely focused on mid-senior level targets and faced resistance primarily in the form of constitutional challenges to their jurisdictions and powers. From 2008, however, the KPK began targeting politically powerful figures, drawing resistance that now threatens the future efficacy of both institutions. It is largely in Indonesia's courtrooms and lawmaking institutions that key battles between reformists and those preferring the status quo have played out. This book describes and analyses these judicial processes and legal changes. It shows that despite persistent claims that Indonesia's legal system is dysfunctional, law is far from irrelevant in modern-day Indonesia. The book is a useful contribution to South East Asian politics and Asian law.

Christianity, Islam and Nationalism in Indonesia Charles E. Farhadian, 2005-11-17 Although over eighty percent of the country is Muslim, Indonesia is marked by an extraordinary diversity in language, ancestry, culture, religion, and ways of life. This book focuses on the Christian Dani of West Papua, providing a social and ethnographic history of the most important indigenous population in the troubled province It presents a fascinating overview of the Dani s conversion to Christianity examining the social religious and political uses to which they have put their new religion Based on independent research carried out over many years among the Dani people the book provides an abundance of new material on religious and political events in West Papua Underlining the heart of Christian Muslim rivalries the book questions the fate of religion in late modern times

Adolescents in Contemporary Indonesia Lyn Parker,Pam Nilan,2013-07-18 The youth demographic is a large and growing cohort in Indonesia and adolescents embody the currents of social change Throughout the twentieth century they were significant agents of social protest leading to social and political transformation This book looks at the importance of adolescents in contemporary Indonesia and how they are spearheading not just globalisation and a growing consumer youth culture but also the Islamisation movement The book explores both the inner worlds and social selves of Indonesian adolescents It presents an in depth knowledge of Indonesian society and culture in various parts of Indonesia and discusses national patterns and trends Grounded in two field sites the book enables an analysis of young people s local ethnic and religious identities and their commitment to the Indonesian nation state It goes on to look at the physical age bracket of youth the definitions used by the Indonesian state and other agencies and the perceptions of youth themselves about adolescence and adulthood Providing a comprehensive study of young people in contemporary Indonesia the book addresses gender relations the importance of education for youth and youth engagement with popular culture and the moral issue concerning the sexual propriety of young people It is a useful contribution for students and academics of Asian Studies Sociology and Cultural Studies

Local Politics in Indonesia Nankyung Choi,2012-02-20 Competitive elections have become an institutionalized feature of contemporary Indonesia s politics This together with other considerations makes it reasonable to call Indonesia the world s third largest democracy Nonetheless democratic elections in Indonesia are both more complex and interesting than is commonly understood This book explores how local elections in Indonesia have affected the development and dynamics of Indonesia s fledgling democracy Based on fine grained analyses of elections in five localities the book shows how Indonesia s transition to direct elections of local government executives has transformed party politics and elite development at local levels of governance Employing the methods of political anthropology and informed by a critical reading of theories of democracy and decentralization the book presents detailed analyses of elections in five localities across four Indonesian provinces The book calls attention to the ambiguous relation between formal democratic reforms and political behavior It illustrates how local elite politics has evolved within the context of political and administrative reforms whose announced goals are to improve the representativeness and responsiveness of political institutions This book provides a window onto local political processes that will be of interest to students and scholars of politics in Southeast Asia and beyond

Identity Politics and Elections in Malaysia and Indonesia Karolina Prasad,2015-12-14 In recent social research ethnicity has mostly been used as an explanatory variable It was only after it was agreed that ethnicity in itself is subject to change were the questions of how and why it changes possible to answer This multiplicity of ethnic identities requires that we think of each society as one with multiple ethnic dimensions of which any can become activated in the process of political competition and sometimes several of them within a short period of time Focusing on Malaysia and Indonesia this book traces the variations of ethnic identity by looking at electoral strategies in two sub national units It shows that ethnic identities are subject to change induced by calculated moves by political entrepreneurs who use identities as tools to maximize their chances of winning elections or expanding support base and highlights how political institutions play an enormous role in shaping the modes and dynamics of these ethno political manipulations The book suggests that in societies where ethnic identities are activated in politics instead of analysing politics with ethnic distribution as an independent variable ethnic distribution can be taken as the dependent variable with political institutions being the explanatory one It examines the problems of voters behaviour and parties and candidates strategy in a polity that is to a significant extent driven by ethnic relations Pushing the boundaries of qualitative research on Southeast Asian politics by placing formal institutions at the centre of its analysis this book will be of interest to students and scholars of Southeast Asian Politics Race and Ethnic Studies and International Relations
