

The illustration on the book cover depicts a Roman military camp or fort in a hilly, wooded landscape. In the foreground, a stone wall with crenellations runs across the bottom left. Two Roman soldiers in traditional tunics and helmets stand on the wall, looking towards the interior. To the right of the wall, a horse-drawn chariot with two horses is visible. In the middle ground, a dirt road or path leads into the distance, where a group of people, including soldiers and civilians, are walking. A small wooden building with a pitched roof stands near the path. The background features rolling hills and distant mountains under a pale sky. The overall style is that of a historical painting or a detailed woodcut.

from leading figures in the field These include studies of archive formation and use the concept of dig writing as a distinctive genre of archaeological creativity and reviews of new sources for already well known lives Several chapters reflect on the experience of life writing review the historiography of the field and assess the intellectual value and significance of life writing as a genre Together they work to problematise underlying assumptions about this genre foregrounding methodology social theory ethics and other practice focused frameworks in conscious tension with previous practices
