Rome In Africa:

Roman Africa Alexander Graham, 1902      Rome in Africa Susan Raven, 1969 Nearly three thousand years ago the Phoenicians set up trading colonies on the coast of North Africa and ever since successive civilizations have been imposed on the local inhabitants largely from outside Carthaginians Romans vandals Byzantines Arabs Turks French and Italians have all occupied the region in their time The Romans governed this part of Africa for six hundred cities twelve thousand miles of roads and hundreds of aqueducts some fifty miles long The remains of many of these structures can be seen today At the height of its prosperity during the second and third centuries AD the area was the granary of Rome and produced more olive oil than Italy itself The broadening horizons of the Roman Empire provided scope for the particular talents of a number of Africa's sons the writers Terence and Apuleius the first African Roman Emperor Septimius Severus famous Christian theologians like Tertullian and Saint Augustine these are just some who rose to meet the challenges of their age      Africa and Rome Charles River Charles River Editors, 2018-11-07 Includes pictures Includes ancient accounts Includes online resources and a bibliography for further reading Among all the periods in ancient Egyptian history the Ptolemaic Kingdom and its most famous ruler Cleopatra may be the most well known today By the 4th century BCE it appeared as though ancient Egypt was in its final death throes It had long ceased to be an influential kingdom in the Near East and Mediterranean regions and it had been ruled over by a succession of foreign peoples including Libyans Nubians Assyrians and Persians But just when Egypt seemed was doomed to pass forever into obscurity it was reinvigorated by outsiders most notably Alexander the Great While in the process of campaigning to destroy the Achaemenid Persian Empire and conquer the world in 331 BCE he made a pit stop in Egypt that forever changed the course of Egyptian history Although his understanding of ancient Egyptian chronology and religion was minimal Alexander was intrigued by ancient pharaonic culture knowing as the 5th century BCE Greek historian Herodotus once wrote Egypt is the gift of the Nile As a result Alexander endeavored to incorporate the land of the pharaohs into Hellenic Civilization In the latter 1st century BCE men like Julius Caesar Mark Antony and Octavian participated in two civil wars that would spell the end of the Roman Republic and determine who would become the Roman emperor In the middle of it all was history's most famous woman Cleopatra who famously seduced both Caesar and Antony and thereby positioned herself as one of the most influential people in a world of powerful men Cleopatra was a legendary figure even to contemporary Romans and the ancient world and she was a controversial figure who was equally reviled and praised through the years depicted both as a benevolent ruler and an evil seductress occasionally at the same time As for Roman Egypt the period from 30 BCE until the Roman Empire was split into two halves in the 4th century CE It is scarcely mentioned yet it was a time when Egypt if no longer a great power in its own right was a pivotal province in the Roman Empire It could also be argued it was a power without which the Roman Empire would not have survived Its wealth especially its fertility was the key for any Roman emperor hoping to feed and entertain Rome's ever demanding masses and was particularly vital to Augustus as he established himself as the first emperor of Egypt The institution of imperial as opposed to senatorial provinces proved crucial in the consolidation of imperial power Moreover how Egypt in this period was administered and exploited provides invaluable information as to how Rome manipulated and controlled large populations for its benefit in the rest of its empire Tactics used again and again throughout the Roman world were honed in this the most valuable of Rome's provinces Apart from the complicated nature of evolving administrative systems in the area another major challenge for modern researchers of the Roman period in North African history is that the natural environment was very different from that of today The usual assumption is that the region was only fertile on the coast and that the hinterlands could not have provided the resources needed to maintain large wealthy populations However in ancient times North Africa was a fertile region and scientists believe the vast area of steep grasslands that covered most of what is the Sahara Desert today began to dry about 5 000 years ago and the process of grasslands turning into deserts was slow While there is considerable debate as to the time the process took and whether the small scale farming techniques used in the region contributed to the process of desiccation it is clear that the area around Carthage for example had a wide area of well cultivated lands and that such cultivation lasted well into the Middle Ages Rome in Africa Susan Raven,2012-12-06

Carthage was one of the great ancient civilizations and at its peak the wealthy Carthaginian empire dominated the Mediterranean against the likes of Greece and Rome with commercial enterprises and influence stretching from Spain to Turkey In fact at several points in history it had a very real chance of replacing the fledgling Roman Empire or the failing Greek poleis city states altogether as master of the Mediterranean Although Carthage by far preferred to exert economic pressure and influence before resorting to direct military power and even went so far as to rely primarily on mercenary armies paid with its vast wealth for much of its history it nonetheless produced a number of outstanding generals from the likes of Hanno Magnus to of course the great bogeyman of Roman nightmares himself Hannibal Certain foreign policy decisions led to continuing enmity between Carthage and the burgeoning power of Rome and what followed was a series of wars which turned from a battle for Mediterranean hegemony into an all out struggle for survival Although the Romans gained the upper hand in the wake of the First Punic War Hannibal brought the Romans to their knees for over a decade during the Second Punic War While military historians are still amazed that he was able to maintain his army in Italy near Rome for nearly 15 years scholars are still puzzled over some of his decisions including why he never attempted to march on Rome in the first place After the serious threat Hannibal posed during the Second Punic War the Romans didn't wait much longer to take the fight to the Carthaginians in the Third Punic War which ended with Roman legions smashing Carthage to rubble As legend has it the Romans literally salted the ground upon which Carthage stood to ensure its destruction once and for all At its height the Roman Empire covered huge swathes of Western Europe the Middle East Egypt and North Africa and while many people are aware of Rome's influence and legacy in Europe and the Middle East they often have less understanding of Roman settlements on North Africa's Mediterranean coast Nonetheless this was an area that produced a number of emperors including the only black emperors some of the most sophisticated towns and cities of the empire and Roman ruins that offer some of the best evidence of the Roman way of life to be found anywhere in the world Apart from the complicated nature of evolving administrative systems in the area another major challenge for modern researchers of the Roman period in North African history is that the natural environment was very different from that of today The usual assumption is that the region was only fertile on the coast and that the hinterlands could not have provided the resources needed to maintain large wealthy populations However in ancient times North Africa was a fertile region and scientists believe the vast area of steep grasslands that covered most of what is the Sahara Desert today began to dry about 5 000 years ago and the process of grasslands turning into deserts was slow While there is considerable debate as to the time the process took and whether the small scale farming techniques used in the region contributed to the process of desiccation it is clear that the area around Carthage for example had a wide area of well cultivated lands and that such cultivation lasted well into the Middle Ages The Roman Provinces of North Africa The History of the Region and Its Rulers after the Punic Wars looks at Rome's famous conquests and what the area was like until the dissolution of history's most famous empire Along with pictures depicting important people places and events you will learn about the Roman provinces of North Africa like never before

Restorations of Empire in Africa Samuel Agbamu, 2024-03-13 The histories of Europe and Africa are closely intertwined At times this closeness has been emphasized at other times suppressed and denied Since the nineteenth century European imperial powers have carved up the continent of Africa among themselves drawing borders and charting shorelines in the process inventing Africa This was a project anchored in ancient Greek and Roman representations of Africa For Italy colonialism in Africa was a matter of consolidating its project of national unification nominally completed in 1870 with the capture of Rome By asserting its position as an imperial power the young nation of Italy hoped to join the club of European nation states and in so doing be rid of the perception that it was a country somewhere in between Europe and Africa Yet Italy's colonial endeavour in Africa was also a project with deep historical meaning Italy posed its imperial project in Africa as a national return to territory which was rightfully Italian Italian ideologues of imperialism based this claim on the history of Roman history on the continent When Italian soldiers disembarked on the beaches of Libya during Italy's invasion of 1911 1912 and came across the ruins of Roman imperialism they were according to prominent cultural and political figures in Italy rediscovering the traces of their ancestors Yet when Italian imperial ambitions set their sights on East Africa regions that had not been conquered by Rome how could Italy nevertheless shape its imperial project in the image of ancient Rome This book charts this story Beginning with Italy's first imperial endeavours on the African continent in the last decades of the nineteenth century and continuing right through to Italy's current attitudes towards Africa this book argues that empire in Africa was a central aspect of Italian nation building and that this was a project which anchored itself in memories of ancient Rome in Africa Although Fascism's invasion of Ethiopia 1935 1936 is the best known moment of Italian imperialism in Africa this book shows that Italian imperialism modelled on ancient Rome has a history which long predates Mussolini's movement and has a legacy which continues to be acutely felt

Rulers, Nomads, and Christians in Roman North Africa Brent D. Shaw, 2024-10-28 The studies collected in this volume cover three broad areas of the history of North Africa as part of the Roman Empire Studies devoted to the history of political institutions are followed by ones that detail aspects of interactions between nomad and sedentary communities in the African provinces The book concludes with two studies on African christianity In all of these special attention is given to the indigenous institutions economies and beliefs that informed the confrontation between African and Roman The studies in general argue for a strongly interactionist approach to historians reconstruction of the history of the period and the region a perspective that would emphasise the continuous conflict between the two world of African and Roman

Environment and Society in Roman North Africa Brent D. Shaw, 2024-12-11 The impact of a changing environment on human society and conversely the impact of man's activities upon the environment are important and contentious subjects today Climatic and environmental change have also been credited with bringing about major shifts in human history One such case is that of the decline of Roman North Africa and its conquest by the Arabs The evidence for this process is however far from clear cut and Professor Shaw's concern in these studies is firstly to re-examine what is known from both archaeological and written sources and how it has been interpreted work which has led to some substantial revisions of accepted accounts In the final three articles he turns to analyse how Roman society functioned on the edge of the desert and in particular to investigate the careful exploitation and control of critical water resources Ritual Sites and Religious Rivalries in Late Roman North Africa Shira L. Lander, 2016-10-24 Lander provides a new understanding of ancient notions of ritual space by analyzing literary along with archaeological evidence Africa in the Roman Empire I. M. Barton, 1972

Roman Conquests: North Africa Nic Fields, 2011-01-26 The third in the Roman Conquests series will briefly cover Rome's first forays into the dark continent during the First and Second Punic Wars then cover in detail her vindictive final conquest and destruction of Carthage in the Third Punic War. The subsequent long wars against the slippery Numidian prince Jugurtha which tested the Roman military system to the limit also occupy a central place. With a cast of characters including Hannibal, the Scipios, Marius, Sulla and the wily Jugurtha, this is sure to be a popular addition to the series. Like the other volumes, this book gives a clear narrative of the course of these wars, explaining how the Roman war machine coped with formidable new foes and the challenges of unfamiliar terrain and climate. Specially commissioned color plates by Graham Sumner bring the main troop types vividly to life in meticulously researched detail. De Africa Romanae Niccolo Mugnai, Julia Nikolaus, Nicholas Ray, 2016-12-01 Conference proceedings The Cities of Roman Africa Gareth Sears, 2011 The story of the cities of Roman Africa
