Crowe, 2010-06-25 Advancing Social Studies Education through Self Study Methodology provides a collection of works that highlights ways in which self study of teaching and teacher education practices can advance conversations and knowledge in social studies education Some of the pieces chosen for this book will provide theoretical connections between the two fields e g how values and principles important to both fields work together are similar and can help each field expand Others will provide specific examples of self studies that focus on social studies specific concepts The book provides a strong and clear introduction of self study to the field of social studies education as well as an argument for its use to further understand social studies teaching and teacher education It also provides the self study community with an example of how self study can be used to look at content specific aspects of Ways that Work Tarry Lindquist, 1997 Ways That Work is an idea book from start to teaching and teacher education finish modeling several different ways social studies content can be organized in elementary and middle school classrooms

Technology in Retrospect Richard A. Diem, Michael J. Berson, 2010-06-01 January 2009 marked the 25th anniversary of one of the most famous three minutes of television history. It was during half time of the 1984 Super Bowl that APPLE show cased its new Macintosh Computer in an avant guard commercial. In the following three weeks sales of the new computer in both the public and private sectors took off leading some to note this occasion as the true start of the information age. At the same time schools joined this so called information revolution and began to use the new technology in various forms in a much more serious manner Given both the changing nature of technology as well as its classroom applications over the past quarter century this work is goal is to capture the historical trends of both use and application of information technology in the social studies during this era. This is done by providing a retrospective view from 1984 through 2009 of where we we been where we are and a view of new tools and strategies and possible studies that are emerging that can enhance our understanding of the effects that technology has and will have on the social studies.

Doing History Linda S. Levstik, Keith C. Barton, 2015-01-30 Now in its fifth edition Doing History offers a unique perspective on teaching and learning history in the elementary and middle grades Through case studies of teachers and students in diverse classrooms and from diverse backgrounds it shows children engaging in authentic historical investigations often in the context of an integrated social studies curriculum. The premise is that children can engage in valid forms of historical inquiry collecting and analyzing data.
