work includes several indexes and technical credits A Sea Monster's Tale Colin Speedie, 2021-06-08 There are few marine creatures as spectacular as the Basking Shark At up to 11 metres in length and seven tonnes in weight this colossal plankton feeding fish is one of the largest in the world second only to the whale shark Historically Basking Sharks were a familiar sight in the northern hemisphere off the coasts of Norway Scotland Ireland Canada and the USA for example In an 18th Century world without electricity they became the focus of active hunting for their huge livers containing large amounts of valuable oil primarily used in lamps Catch numbers were small enough to leave populations largely intact but during the 20th Century a new breed of hunter joined the fray some driven as much by a need for adventure as for financial gain With improved equipment and experience they exploited the shark on an industrial scale that drastically reduced numbers leading to localised near extinction in some areas From the 1970 s onward a new generation took to the seas this time with conservation in mind to identify where the shark might still be found in the waters around the British Isles employing new technologies to solve long standing mysteries about the behaviour of this elusive creature Using the best of both old and new research techniques the case was built to justify the species becoming one of the most protected sharks in the oceans Today the Basking Shark is a much loved cornerstone of our natural heritage There are positive signs that the population has stabilised and may even be slowly recovering from the damage of the past proving that timely conservation measures can be effective Join us on a journey amidst wild seas places people and conservation history in the battle to protect this iconic creature a true sea monster s tale All Around Monstrous: Monster Media in Their Historical Contexts Verena

Bernardi, Frank Jacob, 2019-10-31 We know all kinds of monsters Vampires who suck human blood werewolves who harass tourists in London or Paris zombies who long to feast on our brains or Godzilla who is famous in and outside of Japan for destroying whole cities at once Regardless of their monstrosity all of these creatures are figments of the human mind and as real as they may seem monsters are and always have been constructed by human beings In other words they are imagined How they are imagined however depends on many different aspects and changes throughout history The present volume provides an insight into the construction of monstrosity in different kinds of media including literature film and TV series It will show how and by whom monsters are really created how time changes the perception of monsters and what characterizes specific monstrosities in their specific historical contexts The book will provide valuable insights for scholars in different fields whose interest focuses on either media studies or history American International Pictures Rob

Craig, 2019-02-15 American International Pictures was in many ways the missing link between big budget Hollywood studios poverty row B movie factories and low rent exploitation movie distributors AIP first targeted teen audiences with science fiction horror and fantasy but soon grew to encompass many genres and demographics at times it was indistinguishable from many of the major studios From Abby to Zontar this filmography lists more than 800 feature films television series and TV specials by AIP and its partners and subsidiaries Special attention is given to American International Television the TV arm of

AIP and an appendix lists the complete AITV catalog The author also discusses films produced by founders James H Nicholson and Samuel Z Arkoff after they left the company

The Unnameable Monster in Literature and Film Maria Beville,2013-10-30 This book visits the Thing in its various manifestations as an unnameable monster in literature and film reinforcing the idea that the very essence of the monster is its excess and its indeterminacy Tied primarily to the artistic modes of the gothic science fiction and horror the unnameable monster retains a persistent presence in literary forms as a reminder of the sublime object that exceeds our worst fears Beville examines various representations of this elusive monster and argues that we must look at the monster rather than through it at ourselves As such this book responds to the obsessive manner in which the monsters of literature and culture are managed in processes of classification and in claims that they serve a social function by embodying all that is horrible in the human imagination The book primarily considers literature from the Romantic period to the present and film that leans toward postmodernism Incorporating disciplines such as cultural theory film theory literary criticism and continental philosophy it focuses on that most difficult but interesting quality of the monster its unnameability in order to transform and accelerate current readings of not only the monsters of literature and film but also those that are the focus of contemporary theoretical discussion
