Old Ways In The New World:

Old Ways New Roads John Bonehill, Anne Dulau-Beveridge, Nigel Leask, 2022-10-06 In 1725 an extensive military road and bridge building programme was implemented by the British crown that would transform 18th century Scotland Aimed at pacifying some of her more inaccessible regions and containing the Jacobite threat General Wade's new roads were designed to replace the old ways and tedious passages through the mountains Over the next few decades the laying out of these routes opened up the country to visitors from all backgrounds After the 1760s soldiers surveyors and commercial travellers were joined by leisure tourists and artists eager to explore Scotland's antiquities natural history and scenic landscapes and to describe their findings in words and images In this book a number of acclaimed experts explore how the Scottish landscape was variously documented evaluated planned and imagined in words and images As well as a fascinating insight into the experience of travellers and tourists it also considers how they impacted on the experience of the Scottish people themselves

Old Ways, New People Tim Ingold, 2025-02-27 In this second and retitled edition of Anthropology and as Education Tim Ingold shows that there is more to anthropology than ethnography and more to education than teaching and learning Building on the first edition's exploration of the interface between the disciplines of anthropology and education this revised edition pushes the bounds further calling upon anthropologists to rethink their disciplinary vocation by regarding it as fundamentally an educational rather than an ethnographic endeavour What does a reimagining of anthropology mean for the ways we think about study and the school teaching and learning and the freedoms they exemplify And how does it bear on the practices of participation and observation on ways of study in the field and in the school on art and science research and teaching This edition has been revised and expanded throughout and includes a major new chapter on how the educational mission of anthropology can shape the university of the future This book will appeal to all who are seeking alternatives to mainstream agendas in social and educational policy including educators and students in philosophy the social sciences educational psychology environmentalism and arts practice
