Conflict of Interest in Medical Research, Education, and Practice Institute of Medicine, Board on Health Sciences Policy, Committee on Conflict of Interest in Medical Research, Education, and Practice, 2009-09-16 Collaborations of physicians and researchers with industry can provide valuable benefits to society particularly in the translation of basic scientific discoveries to new therapies and products Recent reports and news stories have however documented disturbing examples of relationships and practices that put at risk the integrity of medical research the objectivity of professional education the quality of patient care the soundness of clinical practice guidelines and the public's trust in medicine Conflict of Interest in Medical Research Education and Practice provides a comprehensive look at conflict of interest in medicine. It offers principles to inform the design of policies to identify limit and manage conflicts of interest without damaging constructive collaboration with industry. It calls for both short term actions and long term commitments by institutions and individuals including leaders of academic medical centers, professional societies, patient advocacy groups, government agencies and drug device and pharmaceutical companies. Failure of the medical community to take convincing action on conflicts of interest invites additional legislative or regulatory measures that may be overly broad or unduly burdensome. Conflict of Interest in Medical Research Education and Practice makes several recommendations for strengthening conflict of interest policies and curbing relationships that create risks with little benefit. The book will serve as an invaluable resource for individuals and organizations committed to high ethical standards in all realms of medicine.

Transforming Ethnopolitical Conflict Alex Austin, Martina Fischer, Norbert Ropers, 2013-04-17 Preface Confronted with a wide variety of conflicts the international community has attempted to respond through humanitarian assistance, development aid, crisis prevention and conflict resolution programmes. To date many of these activities have exacerbated conflict dynamics as much as they have enhanced the opportunities for sustainable development and peace. In an effort to understand what works, lessons learned and best practices are being collected, usually in the form of evaluations of individual projects or programs. Although the number of studies undertaken has increased, few lessons have been systematised or accumulated for broader discussion in the academic field or for practitioners use. The Berghof Research Center for Constructive Conflict Management produced this Handbook in response to the contemporary challenges which have to be faced by those who are working in and on violent conflict. The intention is to give an overview of recent developments in the field of conflict transformation from various perspectives from academic analysts and practitioners as well as from experts representing different areas of work inside and outside of conflict zones.

Does Development Aid Affect Conflict Ripeness? Lucie Podszun, 2011-08-27 Many developing countries find themselves in seemingly intractable internal conflicts, hindering them from moving on into a more stable, secure and wealthy environment. It seems that underdevelopment and conflict go hand in hand. Underdevelopment most often implies large streams of development aid channeled into countries at war. The work evaluates to what extent an increase in development aid affects conflict ripeness. The research shows that the effect is ambivalent; it depends on the conditions of provision, whether it is positive or negative. In general, an increase in development aid decreases the intensity of one of the ingredients to conflict ripeness, the mutually hurting stalemate. However, if embedded into a smart strategy, an increase in development aid enhances the second ingredient to conflict ripeness, the sense of a way out. By that, it counterbalances the negative effect and thus fosters the phase of ripeness, creating an ideal starting position for a subsequent peace process.
