Magister Jacobus de Ispania, Author of the Speculum musicae Margaret Bent, 2016-03-09 The Speculum musicae of the early fourteenth century with nearly half a million words is by a long way the largest medieval treatise on music and probably the most learned Only the final two books are about music as commonly understood the other five invite further work by students of scholastic philosophy theology and mathematics For nearly a century its author has been known as Jacques de Li ge or Jacobus Leodiensis Jacobus is certain fixed by an acrostic declared within the text Li ge is hypothetical based on evidence shown here to be less than secure The one complete manuscript Paris BnF lat 7207 thought by its editor to be Florentine can now be shown on the basis of its miniatures by Cristoforo Cortese to be from the Veneto datable c 1434 40 New documentary evidence in an Italian inventory also from the Veneto describes a lost copy of the treatise dating from before 1419 older than the surviving manuscript and identifies its author as Magister Jacobus de Ispania If this had been known eighty years ago the Li ge hypothesis would never have taken root It invites a new look at the geography and influences that played into this central document of medieval music theory The two new attributes of Magister and de Ispania i e a foreigner prompted an extensive search in published indexes for possible identities Surprisingly few candidates of this name emerged and only one in the right date range It is here suggested that the author of the Speculum is either someone who left no paper trail or James of Spain a nephew of Eleanor of Castile wife of King Edward I whose career is documented mostly in England He was an illegitimate son of Eleanor s older half brother the Infante Enrique of Castile Documentary evidence shows that he was a wealthy and well travelled royal prince who was also an Oxford magister The book traces his career and the likelihood of his authorship of the Speculum musicae The Nobility and Ecclesiastical Patronage in Thirteenth-century England Elizabeth Gemmill, 2013 While there has been work on the nobility as patrons of monasteries this is the first real study of them as patrons of parish churches and is thus the first study to tackle the subject as a whole Illustrated with a wealth of detail it will become an indispensable work of reference for those interested in lay patronage and the Church more generally in the middle ages Professor David Carpenter Department of History King s College London This book provides the first full length integrated study of the ecclesiastical patronage rights of the nobility in medieval England It examines the nature and extent of these rights how they were used why and for whom they were valuable what challenges lay patrons faced and how they looked to the future in making gifts to the Church It takes as its focus the thirteenth century a critical period for the survival and development of these rights being a time of ambitious Church reform of great change in patterns of land ownership in the ranks of the higher nobility and of bold assertion by the English Crown of its claims to control Church property The thirteenth century also saw a proliferation of record keeping on the part of kings bishops and nobility and the author uses new evidence from a range of documentary sources to explore the nature of the relationships between the English nobility the Church and its clergy a relationship in which patronage was the essential feature Dr Elizabeth Gemmill is University Lecturer in Local History and Fellow of Kellogg College University of Oxford Routledge Revivals: Medieval England (1998) Paul E.
