The American Court System Marilyn McShane, 2020-10-28 Depending on whom one talks to today's criminal courts are either the savior or the demon of our social order While everyone seems to have an answer about what needs to be done the solutions are neither simple nor within our current allocation of resources Media hype and political posturing emotionally dilute the reality of what motivates crime and what constitutes effective punishment The essays and research in this anthology give the reader a realistic view of complex problems affecting our juvenile and adult courts and consequently the rest of the criminal justice system Topics include sentencing disparity sentencing reform and wrongful convictions Some traditionally controversial issues are covered such as the insanity defense and the death penalty as well as the more recent three strikes and you're out movement and mandatory minimums This series will be of great utility

Food Aversion Learning N. Milgram, 2013-11-11 During the past 10 years the study of learned aversions to foods has become one of the most popular areas of research in animal psychology Learned aversions to foods are typically produced in the laboratory by first allowing an animal to eat or drink some distinctively novel substance and then making the animal ill in some way most frequently by either giving it an injection of some illness producing drug such as lithium chloride or by exposing it to a toxic dose of radiation When an animal that has been treated in this way is subsequently given another opportunity to ingest the same or a similar substance one usually observes that it will either totally avoid ingesting the substance or that it will consume less of it than a control animal that was not made ill after previously consuming the same substance This form of learning has attracted the interest of many researchers because there are two apparently striking differences in the acquisition of food aversions and the acquisition of other types of associative learning
