Geographies of Myth and Places of Identity Marco Benoit Carbone, 2022-01-13 Turning to a region of South Italy associated with Greater Greece and the geographies of Homer's Odyssey Marco Benoit Carbone delivers a historical and ethnographic treatment of how places defined in public imagination and media by their associated histories become sites of memory and identity as their landscape and mythologies turn into insignia of a romanticised antiquity For the ancient Greeks Homer had set the marine monsters of the Odyssey in the Strait between Calabria and Sicily Since then this passage has been glowing with the aura of its mythological landmarks Travellers and tourists have played Odysseus by re-enacting his journey Scholars and explorers have explained the myths as metaphors of whirlpools and marine fauna The iconic Strait and village of Scilla have turned into place myths and playgrounds defined by the region's heritage Carbone observes the enduring impact of Hellas on the real Strait today The continuous rekindling of cultural and visual traditions of place in the arts media travel and tourism have intersected with philhellenic historiographies shaping local policies public histories views of development and forms of Hellenicist identitarianism Elements of society have celebrated the landscape of the Odyssey appropriated Homer as their imagined heirs and purported themselves as the original Europeans pandering to outdated ideological appropriations of classical antiquity and exclusionary West-centric views of the Mediterranean California

Mission Landscapes Elizabeth Kryder-Reid, 2016-11-30 Nothing defines California and our nation's heritage as significantly or emotionally says the California Mission Foundation as do the twenty-one missions that were founded along the coast from San Diego to Sonoma Indeed the missions collectively represent the state's most iconic tourist destinations and are touchstones for interpreting its history Elementary school students today still make model missions evoking the romanticized versions of the 1930s Does it occur to them or to the tourists that the missions have a dark history California Mission Landscapes is an unprecedented and fascinating history of California mission landscapes from colonial outposts to their reinvention as heritage sites through the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries Illuminating the deeply political nature of this transformation Elizabeth Kryder Reid argues that the designed landscapes have long recast the missions from sites of colonial oppression to aestheticized and nostalgia-drenched monasteries She investigates how such landscapes have been appropriated in social and political power struggles particularly in the perpetuation of social inequalities across boundaries of gender race class ethnicity and religion California Mission Landscapes demonstrates how the gardens planted in mission courtyards over the past 150 years are not merely anachronistic but have become potent ideological spaces The transformation of these sites of conquest into physical and metaphoric gardens has reinforced the marginalization of indigenous agency and diminished the contemporary consequences of colonialism And yet importantly this book also points to the potential to create very different visitor experiences than these landscapes currently do Despite the wealth of scholarship on California history until now no book has explored the mission landscapes as an avenue into understanding the politics of the past tracing the continuum between the Spanish colonial period emerging American nationalism and the contemporary heritage industry

Tourism, Diasporas and Space Tim Coles, Dallen J. Timothy, 2004-08-02 Diasporas result from the scattering of populations and cultures across geographical space and time Transnational in nature and unbounded by space they cut across the static territorial boundaries more usually deployed to govern tourism In a vibrant interdisciplinary collection of essays from leading scholars in the field this book introduces the main features and constructs of diasporas and explores their implications for the consumption production and practices of tourism Three sets of mutually reinforcing relationships are explored experiences of diaspora tourists the settings and spaces of diaspora tourism the production of diaspora tourism Addressing the relationship between diasporic groups and tourism from both a consumer and producer perspective examples are drawn from a wide spectrum of diasporic groups including the Chinese Jewish Southeast Asian Croatian Dutch and Welsh Until now there has been no systematic and detailed treatment of the relationships between diasporas their consumptions and the tourist experience However here Coles and Timothy provide a unique navigation of the nature of these inter connections which is ideal for students of tourism sociology cultural studies

Tourism and the Branded City Stephanie Hemelryk Donald, John G. Gammack, 2016-02-24 Comparing the major Pacific Rim cities of Sydney Hong Kong and Shanghai this book examines world city branding Whilst all three cities compete on the world's stage for events tourists and investment they are also at the centre of distinct film traditions and their identities are thus strongly connected with a cinematic impression Using an interdisciplinary approach this book not only analyses the city branding of these cities from the more widely researched perspectives of tourism marketing and regional development but also draws in cultural studies and psychology approaches which offer fresh and useful insights to place branding and marketing in general The authors compare and contrast qualitative and quantitative original data as well as critically analyzing current texts and debates on city branding In conclusion they argue that city branding should contribute not only to regional development and identity but also to sustainable economic well being and public happiness
