Chicano Culture, Ecology, Politics Devon G. Peña, 1999-01-01 Until recently mainstream American environmentalism has been a predominantly white middle class movement essentially ignoring the class, race, and gender dimensions of environmental politics. In this provocative collection of original essays, the environmental dimensions of the Chicana/o experience are explicitly expressed and debated. Employing a variety of genres ranging from poetry to autobiography to theoretical and empirical essays, the voices in this collection speak to the most significant issues of environmentalism and social justice, recognizing throughout the need for a pluralism of Chicana/o philosophies. The contributors provide an excellent basis for understanding how multiple Chicana/o views on the environment play out in the context of dominant social, political, and economic views. Chicano Culture Ecology Politics examines a number of Chicana/o ecological perspectives. How can the ethics of reciprocity present in Chicana/o agropastoral life be protected and applied on a broader scale? How can the dominant society, whose economic structure is invested in placeless mobility, take note of the harm caused to land-based cultures, take responsibility for it, and take heed before it is too late? Will the larger society be ecologically housebroken before it destroys its home? Grounded in actual political struggles waged by Chicana/o communities over issues of environmental destruction, cultural genocide, and socioeconomic domination, this volume provides an important series of snapshots of Chicana/o history. Chicano Culture Ecology Politics illuminates the bridges that exist and must be understood between race, ethnicity, class, gender, politics, and ecology.

The Two-Headed Household
Sarah Hamilton, 2010-11-23 The Two Headed Household is an ethnographic account of gender relations and intrahousehold decisionmaking as well as a policy oriented study of gender and development in the indigenous Andean community of Chanchalo Ecuador Hamilton's main argument is that the households in these farming communities are two headed Men and women participate equally in agricultural production and management in household decisionmaking and share in the reproductive tasks of child care food preparation and other chores Based on qualitative fieldwork and regional household survey data this book investigates the effect on women's lives of gender bias in agricultural development programs and labor and commodities markets Despite household economic reliance on these programs and markets there is extraordinary evidence of social and economic gender equality Traditional Andean kinship structures enable women and men to enter marriage as materially equal partners As seen in case studies of five women and their families the author continually encounters joint decisionmaking and shared household and agricultural responsibilities In fact it often seems that women have the final say in many decisions There is the belief that a dynamic balance of power between male and female heads provides an impetus toward mutually desired economic and social goals Despite the strong influence of the patriarchal power of the hacienda system Andean gender ideology accords women and men equal measures of physical mental and emotional fortitude The belief that maintaining traditional forms of economic collaboration helped them survive on the hacienda was reinforced under the economic and political domination of the patriarchal systems of the landed elite church and state Today these people are proud of their strong women strong families and community solidarity which they believe distinguishes them from Ecuadorean and American societies Hamilton suggests that women in developing countries should not be viewed as simply or even inevitably victims of gender biased structural or cultural institutions They may resist male bias perhaps even with the support of local level institutions The Two Headed Household demonstrates that analysis of gender relations should focus on forms of cooperation among women and men as well as on forms of conflict and will be of interest to scholars and students in anthropology gender and development and Latin American Studies
