Paddington Station Its History And Architecture:

Paddington Station Steven Brindle, 2004 Paddington the Great Western Railway and their principal designer Isambard Kingdom Brunel are at the heart of railway history Railways were one of the defining phenomena of Victorian Britain and one of Britain's many great gifts to the world This history forms the background to this book Paddington Station Steven Brindle, 2004 The Architecture and Legacy of British Railway Buildings Robert Thornton, Malcolm Wood, 2020-09-01 Railway buildings have always had a fascinating character all of their own despite many no longer being in operational railway service This book tells the story of how these buildings evolved alongside the development of the railway in Great Britain and examines how architects over the years have responded to the operational social and cultural influences that define their work Written for those with a keen interest in architecture and the railway as well as those new to the subject The Architecture and Legacy of British Railway Buildings provides an unique insight into the production of railway architecture both in the context of railway management and the significant periods of ownership and the swings in national mood for railway based transportation As well as tracing its history the authors take time to consider the legacy these buildings have left behind and the impact of heritage on a continually forward looking industry Topics covered include the context of railway architecture today the history of how it came into existence the evolution of different railway building types the unique aspects of railway building design and finally the key railway development periods and their architectural influences The World's First Railway System Mark Casson, 2009-09-10 This is the first history of the British railway system written from a modern economic perspective It uses counterfactual analysis to construct an alternative network to represent the most efficient alternative rail network that could have been constructed given what was known at the time the first time this has been done Paddington Station Steven Brindle, 2004 Paddington Station in London is one of Britain's most splendid and historically significant railway termini as the home and headquarters of the Great Western Railway and as one of the masterpieces of its chief engineer Isambard Kingdom Brunel 1806-59 Steven Brindle's comprehensive history the first full length study of the station to be published first appeared in 2004 Around the same time in the course of research for the book the author discovered Brunel's earliest surviving cast iron bridge which spanned the Regents Canal just outside the station but had hitherto been unrecognised just in time to prevent its destruction for a major new road bridge and negotiate its salvage by dismantling The second edition of the book richly illustrated from a wealth of historic sources and now published in a larger format has been updated to take account of a series of momentous recent developments at Paddington the reprieve and restoration of the station's Edwardian fourth span the project to create a new entrance on its north side and the impending redevelopment of its south side to serve as one of the principal stations on the new Crossrail route across London The book concludes with a detailed account of the project to rebuild the Bishops Road Bridge project and the author's discovery and salvage of Brunel's iron canal bridge a rare instance when writing the history of a historic place directly influenced its future and led to the saving of a unique part of the past London's Great Railway Stations Oliver Green,2021-12-07 A lavish photographic history of all the key railway stations of London for transport buffs and anyone interested in the rich history of London Coding and Representation from the Nineteenth Century to the Present Anne Chapman,Natalie Hume,2021-05-10 An exploration of trends and cultures connected to electrical telegraphy and recent digital communications this collection emerges from the research project Scrambled Messages The Telegraphic Imaginary 1866 1900 which investigated cultural phenomena relating to the 1866 transatlantic telegraph It interrogates the ways in which society politics literature and art are imbricated with changing communications technologies from the mid nineteenth century to the present Contributors consider control imperialism and capital as well as utopianism and hope grappling with the ways in which human connections and their messages continue to be shaped by communications infrastructures

Architectural History ,2006 Studies in the History of Services and Construction James Campbell,Amy Boyington,Yiting Pan,Nina Baker,Michael Heaton,Michael Tutton,David Yeomans,Henrik Schoenefeldt,Michael Driver,2018 Building services are often overlooked in the history of architecture and engineering This volume presents 41 papers presented at the Fifth Annual Conference of the Construction History Society held at Queens College Cambridge from 6 8 April 2018 which cover a wide variety of topics on aspects of construction history and building services "Iron, Ornament and Architecture in Victorian Britain " Paul Dobraszczyk,2017-07-05 Vilified by leading architectural modernists and Victorian critics alike mass produced architectural ornament in iron has received little sustained study since the 1960s yet it proliferated in Britain in the half century after the building of the Crystal Palace in 1851 a time when some architects engineers manufacturers and theorists believed that the fusion of iron and ornament would reconcile art and technology and create a new modern architectural language Comprehensively illustrated and richly researched Iron Ornament and Architecture in Victorian Britain presents the most sustained study to date of the development of mechanised architectural ornament in iron in nineteenth century architecture its reception and theorisation by architects critics and engineers and the contexts in which it flourished including industrial buildings retail and seaside architecture railway stations buildings for export and exhibition and street furniture Appealing to architects conservationists historians and students of nineteenth century visual culture and the built environment this book offers new ways of understanding the notion of modernity in Victorian architecture by questioning and re evaluating both Victorian and modernist understandings of the ideological split between historicism and functionalism and ornament and structure
