Therapeutic Angiogenesis for Vascular Diseases Mark Slevin, 2010-10-11 Angiogenesis is the growth of new blood vessels and is a key process which occurs during pathological disease progression Excessive and damaging angiogenesis occurs in diseases such as cancer diabetic retinopathies age related macular degeneration and atherosclerosis In other diseases such as stroke and myocardial infarction insufficient or improper angiogenesis results in tissue loss and ultimately higher morbidity and mortality In this book we will begin by providing the reader with an overview of the process of angiogenesis including normal embryological development of blood vessels The following chapters will each focus on a key angiogenic disease incorporating current scientific knowledge concerning the causes of activation of the angiogenic switch pathological consequences current treatment options and future perspectives Where appropriate results from pre clinical trials novel imaging modalities and nanotechnological approaches will be incorporated into these sections Finally since it is now believed that the process of angiogenesis operated via different signalling mechanisms in different vascular beds we will discuss our current understanding of this phenomenon The target audience for this book would include researchers in all the basic sciences post graduate students at Universities and Institutes pharmaceutical industries clinicians working in vascular biology or tissue imaging pathologists neurologists tumour biologists ophthalmologists and cardiologists

Critical Leg Ischaemia John A. Dormandy, Günter Stock, 2012-12-06 Jean Natali The pathophysiology and management of chronic critical limb ischaemia CLI has always been a problematic area at least partly because it involves doctors from a wide range of the traditional medical specialities including vascular surgery angiology diabetology haematology and radiology The treatment of these patients also varies largely with local circumstances and national traditions CLI therefore seemed a particularly appropriate subject for a new type of European consensus approach In 1988 a series of small workshops were held by the European Working Group on Critical Limb Ischaemia to discuss the definition pathophysiology in vestigation and management of this condition The process culminated in a meet ing in Berlin in March 1989 where 120 specialists from sixteen European countries representing the basic sciences as well as a spectrum of clinical dis ciplines met to evolve a Consensus Document on the subject with specific recom mendations The Document which is reproduced in the first section of this book does not of course necessarily represent the unanimous view of all those who participated in its compilation however it is agreed that it does represent a con sensus or majority view It was also noted that the comments and recommenda tions in the document should be taken as a whole and are not intended to dictate the only correct approach to individual treatment
