therapeutic encounter book will be valuable for all psychotherapists and counsellors Relating in Psychotherapy John Birtchnell, 2013-05-13 In John Birtchnell's last book How Humans Relate he proposed a new theory as the basis for a science of relating. Relating in Psychotherapy explains how the relevance of this theory relates to the practice of psychotherapy. The theory cuts across all schools of therapy and is a way of describing each school in terms of relating in both the client and the therapist. The theory is constructed around two major axes: a horizontal one concerning the degree to which we need to become involved with or separated from others and a vertical one concerning the degree to which we choose to exercise power over others or permit others to exercise their power over us. With numerous clinical examples, John Birtchnell explains how we need to be competent in all four relating positions: close, distant, upper and lower, and argues that people who seek therapy usually lack competence in one or more of them but through the course of therapy their relating capabilities can be improved. Relating in Psychotherapy can have applications in psychotherapy and in couple and family therapy and will be an invaluable resource for therapists, counsellors and other mental health professionals Sexuality Chess Denman, 2017-05-01 Of interest to psychotherapists and counsellors of all kinds, this text describes key issues and controversies in human sexuality as they present in therapy practice. The author uses the biopsychosocial approach to human behaviour to analyze sexual behaviour, object choice, transgendered experience, sexual problems, transgressive sex and sex therapy. Issues of sexuality in the consulting room, including transference and countertransference, are discussed and throughout therapeutic approaches to sexual problems are presented. The human capacity for inventive imagining is presented as an important force for beneficial change and in relation to sexuality discussed in terms of the erotic imagination.
