 Eleanor Johnson, 2017-12-20 Literary scholars often avoid the category of the aesthetic in discussions of ethics believing that purely aesthetic judgments can vitiate analyses of a literary work's sociopolitical heft and meaning In Practicing Literary Theory in the Middle Ages Eleanor Johnson reveals that aesthetics the formal aspects of literary language that make it sense perceptible are indeed inextricable from ethics in the writing of medieval literature Johnson brings a keen formalist eye to bear on the prosimetric form the mixing of prose with lyrical poetry This form descends from the writings of the sixth century Christian philosopher Boethius specifically his famous prison text Consolation of Philosophy to the late medieval English tradition Johnson argues that Boethius's text had a broad influence not simply on the thematic and philosophical content of subsequent literary writing but also on the specific aesthetic construction of several vernacular traditions She demonstrates the underlying prosimetric structures in a variety of Middle English texts including Chaucer's Troilus and Criseyde and portions of the Canterbury Tales Thomas Usk's Testament of Love John Gower's Confessio amantis and Thomas Hoccleve's autobiographical poetry and asks how particular formal choices work how they resonate with medieval literary theoretical ideas and how particular poems and prose works mediate the tricky business of modeling ethical transformation for a readership      Patterns; Readings for Composition James D. Lester, 1974      Pattern Recognition and Image Preprocessing
 Sing T. Bow, 2002-01-11 Describing non parametric and parametric theoretic classification and the training of discriminant functions this second edition includes new and expanded sections on neural networks Fisher's discriminant wavelet transform and the method of principal components It contains discussions on dimensionality reduction and feature selection novel computer system architectures proven algorithms for solutions to common roadblocks in data processing computing models including the Hamming net the Kohonen self organizing map and the Hopfield net detailed appendices with data sets illustrating key concepts in the text and more      A History of Contemporary Chinese Literature Zicheng Hong, 2007-10-15
 This groundbreaking book by the eminent Peking University professor Hong Zicheng covers the literary scene in China during the 1949-1999 period primarily focusing on fiction poetry drama and prose writing Reprinted sixteen times since its publication in the PRC in 1999 it is now available in English translation at last The first section of the book deals with the 1949-1976 period Often derided and ignored as an arid era for literature by both Chinese and overseas critics Professor Hong describes the literature that was popular and officially acceptable at the time and the cultural policies and political campaigns that shaped the tastes of readers and the literary creativity of writers during the period This part of the book is remarkable for Professor Hong's candidness and open mindedness qualities that would have made this text difficult to publish at an earlier date in China Furthermore the platform that the first part of the text provides renders the second part even more understandable to readers unfamiliar with the post 1976 literary scene and offers new insights to those who are familiar with it demonstrating as it does the close links between the two distinctive eras These links are provided by the resumption of literary traditions that had been more or less abandoned during the preceding ten year period as well as reactions against literature nurtured and guided by the state cultural apparatus The second part of the book consists of a comprehensive description of developments and insightful explanations of those developments in the literary arts and literary criticism since 1976 A unique and much needed accomplishment in contemporary literary studies Also available in paperback

New Zealand Politics and Social Patterns Robert McDonald Chapman,Robert Chapman,1999      Memory, Metaphors, and Meaning Nicolae Babuts,2017-07-05 Literature explores the human condition the mystery of the world life and death as well as our relations with others and our desires and dreams It differs from science in its aims and methods but Babuts shows in other respects that literature has much common ground with science Both aim for an authentic version of truth To this end literature employs metaphors and it does so in a manner similar to that of scientific inquiry The cognitive view does not imply that there is a one to one correlation between the world and text that meaning belongs to the author or that literature is equivalent to perception What it does maintain is that meaning is crucially dependent on mnemonic initiatives and that without memory the world remains meaningless Nicolae Babuts claims that at the interface with the printed page readers process texts in a manner similar to the way they explain the visible world in segments or units of meaning or dynamic patterns Babuts argues that humans achieve recognition by integrating stimulus sequences with corresponding patterns that recognize and interpret each segment of a text Memory produces meaning from these patterns In harmony with its goals memory may adopt specific strategies to deal with different stimuli Dynamic patterns link the unit of processing with the unit of meaning In sum Babuts proposes that meaning is achieved through metaphors and narrative and that both are ways to reach cognitive goals This original study offers perspectives that will interest cognitive psychologists as well as those simply interested in the process through which literature stirs the human imagination
