Environment in the 21st Century and New Development Patterns K. Matsushita, 2013-06-29 Economic growth after World War II was made possible through dramatic increases in the use of material resources and energy. It is apparent that current development patterns followed by industrialized countries are causing serious environmental problems and that they are neither ecologically nor socially sustainable. In recent years many Asian developing countries which have suffered from poverty for decades are experiencing high rates of economic growth by introducing material intensive production and consumption patterns. The globalization trends magnify on a global scale the problems associated with current development patterns. How can we transform existing economic and social systems into more environmentally benign and sustainable ones? This book presents a number of issues that must be considered when discussing new development patterns which are environmentally friendly and socially fair. It covers concepts of new development patterns, new energy and water supply, sustainable agriculture, information technology, and environment information disclosure and poverty alleviation. Audience: This volume will be of interest to those who are involved in innovative interdisciplinary policy studies on environment and development, particularly in Asia and the Pacific region. Also those who are interested in realizing sustainable development through agriculture, water supply, information technology, chemical industry, and sustainability issues in China and India.

Gastrulation Ray Keller,Wallis H. Clark Jr.,Frederick Griffin,2012-12-06 Gastrulation is a fundamental process of early embryonic development It involves virtually every aspect of cell and developmental biology and results in the formation of fundamental structural elements around which a developing animal s body plan is organized As such it is not only an important process but also one that is complicated and not easily dissected into its component parts To understand the mechanisms of gastrulation one must acknowledge that gastrulation is fundamentally a biomechanical process that is a problem of cells generating forces in a three dimensional array patterned in space and time such that appropriate tissue movements are executed Three intertwined questions emerge what cell activities generate forces how are these cell activities patterned in space and time and how are the resulting forces harnessed in three dimensional domains To address these issues it is important to define and characterize regional cell behaviors and to learn how they are patterned in the egg and or by subsequent cell and tissue interactions At the biochemical level what are the cellular and extracellular molecules that control cell behavior Finally how are specific patterns of cellular activity integrated to produce tissue behavior The task of answering the above questions an immense task in itself is compounded by the fact that the morphogenetic movements of gastrulation and their underlying mechanisms vary between different organisms

Signalling Pathways in Embryonic Development Juan J. Sanz-Ezquerro,Andrea E. Münsterberg,Sigmar Stricker,2017-11-30 The formation of a complex multicellular organism from a single cell is one of the most amazing processes of biology Embryonic development is characterised by the careful regulation of cellular behaviours such that cells proliferate migrate differentiate and form tissues at the correct place and time These processes are genetically controlled and depend both on the history of cells their lineage and on the activities of signalling pathways which coordinate the cell interactions leading to organogenesis The aim of the Frontiers research topic Signalling pathways in embryonic development has been to provide a forum for experts in cell and developmental biology to share recent advances in the field of signalling during embryonic development Sixteen articles in a variety of formats are united in this Topic offering a valuable collection for researchers looking for an update in the knowledge of signalling pathways operating during embryogenesis The works focused mainly on vertebrates explore different aspects of this theme from cell communication to organ formation and have implications for areas as distant as evolution or pathology Understanding developmental signalling pathways is important for several reasons It gives us information about basic mechanisms of cell function and interactions needed for morphogenesis and organogenesis It uncovers the basis of congenital malformations since errors at any step of cell signalling during development are a major cause of defects This fundamental insight gives us clues to understand the mechanisms operating in evolution that explain diversity in form and function And finally it allows the identification of possible causes of disease in the adult organism such as cancer or degenerative diseases pinpointing possible targets for therapeutic approaches
