

SOCIAL WELFARE ADMINISTRATION

Administration

Administration is a cooperative human effort towards achieving some common goals. The word administration has been derived from the Latin words 'ad' and 'ministrate' which means to serve. In simple language, it means the 'management of affairs' or 'looking after the people'.

L.D. White (1948) views that, "the art of administration is the direction, coordination and control of many persons to achieve some purpose or objective."

According to Herbert A. Simon (1960), "In its broadest sense, administration can be defined as the activities of groups co-operative to accomplish common goals."

Social Welfare Administration – Introduction

In earlier times, social welfare was performed by a select few individuals or small groups of individuals who were inspired by compassion and concern for the poor, the needy and the destitute. Since, it is no longer accepted that any normally intelligent person with good intentions can administer the welfare work, a sound administration is vital. It is increasingly realized that social welfare programmes require qualified and trained social welfare personnel to perform social welfare functions efficiently. So, it is argued that for serving the people effectively it is necessary to be professional, as professionalism can increase the ability of social welfare personnel to solve the pressing social problems confronting our society.

Social welfare administration aims to apply professional competence to achieve social work goals. Social work's aim is to provide service to individuals in the society and social welfare administration is the 'business' of social work. Social welfare administration helps in professionally doing social work in the society.

Concepts related to Social Welfare Administration

Social Development

Development means progressive change in the living conditions and qualities of life of the members of the society. The process of social development is growth in the direction of modernity, nation-building and socio-economic progress. Development has to be a whole, value laden, cultural process, including the natural environment, social relations, education, production, consumption and well being of the whole nation. Thus social development is the transformation of the society. It is very essential that social welfare administration be practiced to bring in the required social development in our country.

Social Welfare

Social welfare is understood as those formally organized and socially sponsored institutions, agencies and programmes that operate to improve and maintain the economic conditions, health or inter-personal competence of some sections of the population or of all the population. Thus, social welfare implies reordering of socio-economic relations in the present society, which is
