Richard Liew,2002-08-29 Providing extensive coverage of all major areas of civil engineering the second edition of this award winning handbook features contributions from leading professionals and academicians and is packed with formulae data tables and definitions vignettes on topics of recent interest and additional sources of information It includes a wealth of material in areas such as coastal engineering polymeric materials computer methods shear stresses in beams and pavement performance evaluation Its wide range of information makes it an essential resource for anyone working in civil structural or environmental engineering      Los Alamos National Laboratory Continued Operation Site-Wide ,1999      Review of the New York City Department of Environmental Protection Operations Support Tool for Water Supply National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Division on Earth and

Life Studies, Water Science and Technology Board, Committee to Review the New York City Department of Environmental Protection Operations Support Tool for Water Supply, 2019-01-11 New York City's water supply system is one of the oldest largest and most complex in the nation. It delivers more than 1.1 billion gallons of water each day from three upstate watersheds: Croton, Catskill, and Delaware, to meet the needs of more than eight million people in the City, one million people in Westchester, Putnam, Orange, and Ulster counties, and millions of commuters and tourists who visit the City throughout the year. The Catskill and Delaware portions, which make up about 90 percent of the supply, receive no filtration or treatment other than disinfection, except for rare instances of high turbidity when a coagulant is added to increase deposition of suspended solids. The remaining 10 percent of the supply comes from the Croton watershed and receives treatment via filtration. The drinking water supply is managed by the Bureau of Water Supply within the New York City Department of Environmental Protection (NYC DEP). To continue to avoid filtration of the Catskill-Delaware portion of the water supply, in 2007 NYC DEP reexamined its control of turbidity in the Catskill portion of the water supply, including both structural improvements to the system and operational changes. The Operations Support Tool (OST) was developed as part of these efforts. OST couples models of reservoir operations and water quality; it uses real-time data on streamflow, snow pack, water quality, reservoir levels, diversions, and releases, and it incorporates streamflow forecasts, all in order to predict future reservoir levels, water delivery to customers, and water quality within the system. These predictions inform the system operators, who then make decisions based on the most current data and forecasts. This report reviews the use of OST in current and future reservoir operations. It considers potential ways in which the City can more effectively use OST, makes recommendations for additional performance measures, and reviews the potential effects of climate change on the City's water supply to help identify and enhance understanding of areas of potential future concern with regard to the use of OST.

Real Time Digital Control Applications A. Alonso-Concheiro, 2014-05-23

Real Time Digital Control Applications is a compilation of papers presented at the Symposium on Real Time Digital Control Applications sponsored by the International Federation of Automatic Control (IFAC) and the International Federation for Information Processing (IFIP) held in Guadalajara, Mexico. The event is organized to provide developing countries with the opportunity to gain insights from the sharing of ideas and experiences of experts from around the world to the rapid growth and development of applications of real-time digital control systems, which is considered as the basis of industrial revolution. The book presents and discusses the various scientific, industrial, and technical applications of real-time digital control systems. Applications in power generation, water, metal processing, cement, food, and manufacturing industries are shown. The text also covers applications in robotics, biomedicine, monitoring, and failure detection, fuel optimization, and heat control, adaptive process control, modeling, and computer software. Industrial engineers, scientists, economists, computer scientists,
