

Blair Underwood

Young Henry Barton, a former Congressional aide of mixed race and the grandson of a legendary civil rights leader, is going through a precocious mid-life crisis. Tired of the back-scratching and back-stabbing and back-watching of legislative politics, he's wondering what to do next with his Beltway experience and abilities when Jack Stanton, the Governor of a small Southern state who has set his sights on the Presidency, half-flatters, half-shanghaies him into a campaign-staff job. What follows for Henry—and the listener—is an education in modern American electoral politics which in dramatic power, humor, psychological acuity, and insider knowledge beggars a hundred textbooks and a thousand lectures.

Primary Colors portrays a convincing world of its own, peopled by smart cookies, nut cases, and wheeler-dealers whose public and private lives illuminate each other—sometimes by casting dark shadows. This story spans the novelistic spectrum and paints a picture of the political state of the nation so vivid that one finds in it the deepest kind of truth—the kind of truth that only fiction can tell.

Blair Underwood is well-known to television audiences for his portrayal of Jonathan Rollins in LA Law. His television work also includes the TNT movie Heat Wave and HBO's Baseball in Black and White. He starred in the film Just Cause and has appeared in numerous stage productions.
