With this version of AdobeType Manager, PostScript Type 1 fonts could be installed onto the Mac but it does not display well on screen - specifically turned screen fonts are needed for the type to look somewhat okay. And if you print to a non-PostScript printer, it would look exactly like it does on screen - very jagged. But if you have a LaserWriter, or output to an image-setter, the type would look as sharp as the resolution of the device.
