Literature as Translation/Translation as Literature Christopher Conti, James Gourley, 2014-03-17 Broadly conceived literature consists of aesthetic and cultural processes that can be thought of as forms of translation By the same token translation requires the sort of creative or interpretive understanding usually associated with literature Literature as Translation Translation as Literature explores a number of themes centred on this shared identity of literature and translation as creative acts of interpretation and understanding The metaphor or motif of translation is the touchstone of this volume which looks at how an expanded idea of translation sheds light not just on features of literary composition and reception but also on modes of intercultural communication at a time when the pressures of globalization threaten local cultures with extinction The theory of ethical translation that has emerged in this context which fosters the practice of preserving the foreignness of the text at the risk of its misunderstanding bears relevance beyond current debates about world literature to the framing of contemporary social issues by dominant discourses like medicine as one contributor's study of the growing autism rights movement reveals The systematizing imperatives of translation that forcibly assimilate the foreign to the familiar like the systematizing imperatives of globalization are resisted in acts of creative understanding in which the particular or different finds sanctuary The overlooked role that the foreign word plays in the discourses that constitute subjectivity and national culture comes to light across the variegated concerns of this volume Contributions range from case studies of the emancipatory role translation has played in various historical and cultural contexts to the study of specific literary works that understand their own aesthetic processes and the interpretive and communicative processes of meaning more generally as forms of translation Several contributors including the English translators of Roberto Bolaño and Hans Blumenberg were prompted in their reflections on the creative and interpretive process of translation by their own accomplished work as translators All are animated by the conviction that translation whether regarded as the creative act of understanding of one culture by another as the agent of political and social transformation as the source of new truths in foreign linguistic environments and not just the bearer of established ones or as the limit of conceptuality outlined in the silhouette of the untranslatable is a creative cultural force of the first importance

ways in which time is represented in reverse forms throughout modernist culture from the beginning of the twentieth century until the decade after World War II Though modernism is often associated with revolutionary or futurist directions this book argues instead that a retrograde dimension is embedded within it By juxtaposing the literature of Europe and North America with that of Australia and New Zealand it suggests how this antipodean context serves to defamiliarize and reconceptualize normative modernist understandings of temporal progression Backgazing thus moves beyond the treatment of a specific geographical periphery as another margin on the expanding field of New Modernist Studies Instead it offers a systematic investigation of the transformative effect of retrograde dimensions on our understanding of canonical modernist texts The title backgazing is taken from Australian poet Robert G FitzGerald s 1938 poem Essay on Memory and it epitomizes how the cultural history of modernism can be restructured according to a radically different discursive map Backgazing intellectually reconfigures US and European modernism within a planetary orbit in which the literature of Australia and the Southern Hemisphere far from being merely an annexed margin can be seen substantively to change the directional compass of modernism more generally By reading canonical modernists such as James Joyce and T S Eliot alongside marginalized writers such as Nancy Cunard and others and relatively neglected authors from Australia and New Zealand this book offers a revisionist cultural history of modernist time one framed by a recognition of how its measurement is modulated across geographical space Veronica Brady in her Own Words ATF Press,2022-10-01 Veronica Brady in her Own Words is a collection of essays and papers by Veronica many unpublished and all without a date and cover a range of topics religion the arts politics and relations with Australian indigenous peoples In the Wake of First Contact Kay Schaffer,1995 In this book colonialism race and gender are explored through the cultural representations of an episode of Australian history
