Criminal Justice James P. Levine, Michael C. Musheno, Dennis J. Palumbo, 1980 Concentrating on the conflicts of interest among criminal justice system components between the public and its perception of crime and among policymakers this analysis promotes new public policy directions First an analysis of crime criminals and the criminal justice system provides a perspective to help distinguish myths about ideal system operation from the reality of its functioning This conceptual framework focuses on the conflicting priorities of private motives and public interests perceptions and misconceptions of crime theories about what constitutes a criminal and the implementation of criminal justice policy from these perceptions. The workings of each of the major components of the criminal justice system are then examined with attention to the real roles and interests of the police, lawyers, attorneys and the defense counsel, the courts and corrections. Interests and goals that are prime points of conflict between these components are detailed as is the impact of these conflicts on law enforcement and crime. Third, four policies currently being used in the U.S. to deal with crime are explored: deterrence, rehabilitation, decriminalization and diversion. Attempts are made to fit each policy into its historical beginning and to highlight reasons for its emerging as an important policy. Each policy's assumptions about the nature of crime and the nature of criminals are discussed. Finally, processes for assessing policies and their impact on society and crime are presented; the processes are evaluated for advantages and pitfalls. Evaluations of research designed to assess policies then lead to proposals for improving criminal justice policy.

Career Criminals in Society Matt DeLisi, 2005-02-15. More than a century of scientific research has indicated that the majority of crime that occurs in society is committed by a small percentage of the population, meaning that most criminals are repeat offenders or career criminals. If societies devoted considerable resources toward preventing and neutralizing career criminals, there would be dramatic reductions in crime, the fear of crime and the assorted costs and collateral consequences of crime. Career Criminals in Society examines the small but dangerous group of repeat offenders who are most damaging to society. The book encourages readers to think critically about the causes of criminal behavior and the potential of the criminal justice system to reduce crime. Author Matt DeLisi draws upon his own practitioner experience interviewing criminal defendants to argue that career criminals can be combated only with a combination of prevention efforts and retributive criminal justice system policies. Key Features: Uses an engaging writing style to provide a comprehensive overview of career criminals. Provides chapter opening vignettes developed from real criminal cases. Examines various crime prevention strategies to neutralize criminal careers Explores the international relevance of career criminals Draws upon research from the fields of criminal justice criminology psychology sociology and human development With its controversial thought provoking style Career Criminals in Society is sure to advance theory and research on chronic offenders and inspire discussions on how to adequately control crime It is an excellent supplementary textbook for undergraduate and graduate courses on criminology criminal behavior crime typologies deviant behavior and crime control and prevention

Social Constructionism in Decision-making Dr. Omar Garrison, 2014-08-26 Correctional officers lack consensus on an agreed upon definition of what constitutes institutional gang practices to enforce zero tolerance policies for gang activity The lack of consistency in enforcing such a policy has serious consequences for the physical safety of both inmates and officers in correctional environments However little research exists about their decision making processes to enforce a zero tolerance policy for gang activity A social construction framework guided this study The research question explored the correctional officers decision making processes to identify gang practices and enforce the zero tolerance policy for gang activity Using a phenomenological design data analysis involved a an analysis of the lived experiences of six purposefully selected officers in enforcing the policy and b a differentiation between their awareness of group threats and nonthreats. The semi structured interview guide consisted of open ended questions to identify cognitive biases in their decision making that revealed use of confirmation bias, cognitive dissonance and groupthink. An interactive and inductive cycle with member checking revealed that officers conformed to institutional socialization i.e. they internalized their center's traditional norms and practices. In turn, this systemic process affected their personal judgments related to recognizing, agreeing to and enforcing the zero tolerance policy. Recommended was the creation of an awareness program to guide correctional personnel in identifying personal biases and making choices that are more rational in their decision making. The social change implications of this study highlights the importance of understanding the complexity of decision making, controlling the effects of personal biases and designing effective ways to build consensus among correctional staff.
