Public Relations And Community A Reconstructed Theory:

Public Relations and Community Dean Kruckeberg, Kenneth Starck, 1988-05-23 This slim volume hits hard at one major point public relations practitioners need to abandon their dominant attitude of narrowly serving the needs of their clients and instead attempt to engender a broad based sense of community By approaching public relations from this broader perspective both the needs of the client and the community are served Implicit in this theory is that a closer knit community will retain more traditional family based values and therefore comprise a more stable and appreciative economic unit for one's client Canadian Journal of Communication Public relations is commonly viewed as using persuasive communications to achieve a client's vested goal Kruckeberg and Starck challenge this oversimplified approach asserting that public relations is a complex multi flow process that should and can affect society as a whole In Part I they examine critically the historical definition and practice of public relations outlining the shortcomings of this narrow approach Part II explores how the community itself has changed Such issues as the shift from rural to urban life and the attempt to regain a sense of community are discussed Part III attempts to reconcile the authors new notion of public relations and community through an in depth case study The results lead the authors to conclude that only if public relations is practiced as an active attempt to build a sense of community can it become a full partner in the communications milieu

Tindall, 2016-03-10 While public relations practitioners have long focused on the relationship between organizations and their stakeholders there has never been a time when that relationship was so dominated by public participation The new model of multiple messages originating from multiple publics at varying levels of engagement is widely acknowledged but not widely explored in scholarly texts The established model of one way communication and message control no longer exists Social media and an increasingly participatory culture means that fans are taking a more active role in the production and co creation of messages communication and meaning These fans have significant power in the relationship dynamic between the message the communicator and the larger audience yet they have not been defined using current theory and discourse Our existing conceptions fail to identify these active and engaged publics let alone understand virtual communities who are highly motivated to communicate with organizations and brands This innovative and original research collection attempts to address this deficit by exploring these interactive engaged publics and open up the complexities of establishing and maintaining relationships in fan created communities Classical Rhetoric and Modern Public Relations Charles Marsh, 2013-05-07 This book expands the theoretical foundations of modern public relations a growing young profession that lacked even a name until the twentieth century As the discipline seeks guiding theories and paradigms rhetorics both ancient and modern have proven to be fruitful fields of exploration Charles Marsh presents Isocratean rhetoric as an instructive antecedent Isocrates was praised by Cicero and Quintilian as the master of all rhetoricians favored over Plato and Aristotle. By delineating the strategic value of Isocratean rhetoric to modern public relations, Marsh addresses the call for research into the philosophical, theoretical, and ethical origins of the field. He also addresses the call among scholars of classical rhetoric for modern relevance. Because Isocrates maintained that stable relationships must solicit and honor dissent, Marsh analyzes both historic and contemporary challenges to Isocratean rhetoric. He then moves forward to establish the modern applications of Isocrates in persuasion, education, strategic planning, new media, postmodern practices and paradigms, such as excellence theory, communitarianism, fully functioning society theory, and reflection.
