Punishment And Process In International Criminal Trials International And Comparative Criminal Just:

Punishment and Process in International Criminal Trials Ralph Henham, 2017-03-02 International sentencing has become significant given the numerous events on the world stage which have focused attention on the justifications and adequacy of punishment for heinous crimes such as genocide and crimes against humanity In addition to providing a detailed evaluation of the philosophical and theoretical difficulties raised by this rapidly developing area of international criminal justice this book provides an integrated socio legal analysis of the law and process of international sentencing It considers the rationale and development of international sentencing structures and processes the nature and scope of legal and procedural constraints on decision making as well as access to justice and rights issues The book discusses sentencing within the context of international criminal law and examines internationalized trial processes and alternative mechanisms for resolution In seeking to comprehend the punishment of international crimes through the comparative contextual analysis of trial processes it challenges our present understanding of how and why particular sentencing outcomes are produced and the perceived legitimacy of international trial justice

The Genocide Convention John Quigley, 2016-03-09 The Genocide Convention explores the question of whether the law and genocide law in particular can prevent mass atrocities The volume explains how genocide came to be accepted as a legal norm and analyzes the intent required for this categorization The work also discusses individual suits against states for genocide and finally explores the utility of genocide as a legal concept

International and Comparative Criminal Justice Mark Findlay, 2013-06-19 International criminal justice is in transition This book explores the growing internationalisation of criminal justice as a phenomenon of global governance It provides students with a critical understanding of the international institutions for regulating transnational crime the development of alternative justice processes across the globe and international and supra national co operation criminal justice policies and practices Key topics covered include The historical development of International Criminal Justice institutions and traditions International Restorative Justice Victim communities and collaborative justice The relationship between crime and war International Human Rights The War on Terror The globalisation of crime and control Developments in global governance communitarian justice and accountability This text will familiarize students with the literature and debates surrounding international criminal justice and enable them to critically appreciate their theoretical and policy context In doing so it encourages students to assess the strengths and weaknesses of different approaches to the study of global justice and the analysis of comparative policy convergence and research It will also help students to reflect on and communicate in an informed and critical way theoretical accounts and empirical studies within the field of international criminal justice This book will be essential reading for upper level undergraduates taking courses in criminal law international relations and governance and postgraduates engaged in international criminal justice international law regulation and governance and human rights

Beyond Punishment: Achieving International Criminal Justice M. Findlay, R.

Henham,2009-11-30 International criminal justice is challenged to better reflect legitimate victim interest This book provides a framework for achieving synthesis between restorative and retributive dimensions within international criminal trials in order to achieve the peace making aspirations of the International Criminal Court Sentencing in International Criminal Law Silvia D'Ascoli,2011-04-01 This book deals with sentencing in international criminal law focusing on the approach of the UN ad hoc Tribunals for the former Yugoslavia ICTY and Rwanda ICTR In contrast to sentencing in domestic jurisdictions and in spite of its growing importance sentencing law is a part of international criminal law that is still under construction and is unregulated in many aspects International sentencing law and practice is not yet defined by exact norms and principles and as yet there is no body of international principles concerning the determination of sentence notwithstanding the huge volume of sentencing research and the extensive modern debate about sentencing principles Moreover international judges receive very little guidance in sentencing matters this contributes to inconsistencies and may increase the risk that similar cases will be sentenced in different ways One purpose of this book is to investigate and evaluate the process of international sentencing especially as interpreted by the ICTY and the ICTR and to suggest a more comprehensive and coherent system of guiding principles which will foster the development of a law of sentencing for international criminal justice The book discusses the law and jurisprudence of the ad hoc Tribunals and also presents an empirical analysis of influential factors and other data from ICTY and ICTR sentencing practice thus offering quantitative support for the doctrinal analysis This publication is one of the first to be entirely devoted to the process of sentencing in international criminal justice The book will thus be of great interest to practitioners academics and students of the subject Fairness in International Criminal Trials Yvonne McDermott,2016 Through careful analysis of current practice this volume argues that international criminal tribunals should have a role in setting the highest standards of due process protection in their procedures and that they can have a positive impact on domestic justice systems in this regard Transforming International Criminal Justice Mark Findlay,Ralph Henham,2005-06 This book sets out an agenda to transform international criminal trials and the delivery of international criminal justice to victim communities through collaboration of currently competing paradigms It reflects a transformation of thinking about the comparative analysis of the trial process and seeks to advance the boundaries of international criminal justice through wider access and inclusivity in an environment of rights protection Collaborative justice is advanced as providing the future context of international criminal trials The book's radical dimension is its argument for the harmonization of restorative and retributive justice within the international criminal trial The focus is initially on the trial process a key symbol of developing international styles of justice It examines theoretical models and political applications of criminal justice through detailed empirical analysis in order to explore the underlying relationship of theory and empirical study applying the outcome in theory testing and policy evaluation in several different jurisdictions The book injects a significant comparative dimension into the study of international criminal justice This is achieved through searching the traditional foundations of internationalism in justice by employing an original methodology to enable a multi dimensional exploration of contexts local regional and global so recognising the importance of difference within an agenda suggesting synthesis The book argues for a concept of international trial within a rights paradigm understood against different procedural traditions and practices and provides a detailed description of trials and trial decision making in various jurisdictions Transforming International Criminal Justice also sets out to develop effective research strategies as part of its interrogation of specific trial narratives and meanings in contemporary legal cultures Key themes are those of internationalisation fair trial and the exercise of discretion in justice resolutions sentencing in particular and the lay professional relationship and its dynamics Finally the book provides a searching critique of the relevance of existing criminology and legal sociology in relation to international criminal justice and speculates on trial transformation and the merger of retributive and restorative international criminal justice comparative analysis of the criminal trial process internationally argues for harmonization of retributive and restorative justice within the international criminal trial sets out an agenda to transform international criminal trials and the delivery of international criminal justice to victim communities

Exploring the Boundaries of International Criminal Justice Mark Findlay, 2016-04-15 This collection discusses appropriate methodologies for comparative research and applies this to the issue of trial transformation in the context of achieving justice in post conflict societies In developing arguments in relation to these problems the authors use international sentencing and the question of victims interests and expectations as a focus The conclusions reached are wide ranging and highly significant in challenging existing conceptions for appreciating and giving effect to the justice demands of victims of war and social conflict The themes developed demonstrate clearly how comparative contextual analysis facilitates our understanding of the legal and social contexts of international punishment and how this understanding can provide the basis for expanding the role of restorative international criminal justice within the context of international criminal trials

A Guided Reader to Research in Comparative Criminology/criminal Justice John Winterdyk, 2009 With this publication the editors offer the first comprehensive text designed to assist facilitate and guide interested researchers in how to engage in comparative criminological criminal justice research The editors have collected a series of nine articles which serve to illustrate examples to facilitate the reader in how to conduct such research Each of the articles is accompanied with a series of questions and useful web links to further assist the reader and or student

Research Methods for Law Mike McConville, 2017-01-18 Introduces students to legalistic theoretical empirical comparative and cross disciplinary research methods grounded in working examples New for this edition New chapter on inter and cross disciplinary research essential reading for international students and students with a non law first degree undertaking research in the areas of law criminology psychology and sociology Research ethics has been expanded to a full chapter that includes current plagiarism and imperfect disclosure Brings existing chapters up to date with the newest thinking in legal research Drawing on

Sentencing and the Legitimacy of Trial Justice
 Ralph Henham,2013-03-01 This book discusses the under researched relationship between sentencing and the legitimacy of punishment It argues that there is an increasing gap between what is perceived as legitimate punishment and the sentencing decisions of the criminal courts Drawing on a wide variety of empirical research evidence the book explores how sentencing could be developed within a more socially inclusive framework for the delivery of trial justice In the international context such developments are directly relevant to the future role of the International Criminal Court especially its ability to deliver more coherent and inclusive trial outcomes that contribute to social reconstruction Similarly in the national context these issues have a vital role to play in helping to re position trial justice as a credible cornerstone of criminal justice governance where social diversity persists In so doing the book should help policy makers in appreciating the likely implications for criminal trials of mainstreaming restorative forms of justice Sentencing and the Legitimacy of Trial Justice firmly ties the issue of legitimacy to the relevant context for delivering justice It suggests a need to develop the tools and methods for achieving this and offers some novel solutions to this complex problem This book will be a valuable resource for graduate students academics practitioners and policy makers in the field of criminal justice as well as scholars interested in socio legal and cross disciplinary approaches to the analysis of criminal process and sentencing and the development of theory and comparative methodology in this area

Contemporary Challenges to Criminal Justice Paul Behrens,2023-12-28 This study provides a critical examination of seminal issues within the main areas of criminal justice its theoretical framework domestic and comparative criminal justice transnational and international criminal law Exploring some of the most interesting challenges arising in these fields it examines the impact of public morality on sentencing policy murder and the mandatory life sentence genocide and the notion of magnitude and incitement to terrorism Taking an approach that is fully integrated in contemporary criminal justice scholarship it offers a diverse and expert perspective With a comprehensive introduction and conclusion drawing the various strands together it offers a rigorous coherent overview of the key issues in play in contemporary international criminal justice This diversity and expertise ensures its appeal to a large audience of students scholars and practitioners of criminal justice around the world

Judges and the Making of International Criminal Law
 Joseph Powderly,2020-06-08 In Judges and the Making of International Criminal Law Joseph Powderly explores the role of judicial creativity in the progressive development of international criminal law This wide ranging work unpacks the nature and contours of the international criminal judicial function Employing empirical theoretical and doctrinal methodologies it interrogates the profile of the international criminal bench judicial ethics and the interpretative techniques that judges have utilized in their efforts to progressively develop international criminal law Drawing on the work of Hersch Lauterpacht it proposes a conception of the international criminal judicial function that places judicial creativity at its very heart In doing so it argues that international criminal judges have a central role to play in ensuring that modern international criminal law continues to adapt to a volatile global environment where accountability for crimes that shock the conscience of humanity is as much needed as at any moment in recent history Elements of Genocide Paul Behrens,Ralph Henham,2013-05-07

Elements of Genocide provides an authoritative evaluation of the current perception of the crime as it appears in the decisions of judicial authorities the writings of the foremost academic experts in the field and in the texts of Commission Reports Genocide constitutes one of the most significant problems in contemporary international law Within the last fifteen years the world has witnessed genocidal conduct in Rwanda and Bosnia and Herzegovina while the debate on the commission of genocide in Darfur and the DR Congo is ongoing Within the same period the prosecution of suspected g nocidaire has taken place in international tribunals internationalised tribunals and domestic courts and the names of Slobodan Milosevic Radovan Karadzic and Saddam Hussein feature among those against whom charges of genocide were brought Pursuing an interdisciplinary examination of the existing case law on genocide in international and domestic courts Elements of Genocide comprehensive and accessible reflection on the crime of genocide and its inherent complexities Sentencing Ralph

Henham,2013-10-01 Sentencing is the process through which the legitimacy of punishment is declared and justified However it is increasingly portrayed as a social activity which should be more responsive to the pluralistic needs and values of individuals and communities in contemporary society It will therefore have to adapt to an array of different perceptions of what justice is and how it should be delivered as well as different sensitivities and emotional responses to sentencing processes and outcomes At a time when fundamental questions are being asked about the relevance of existing forms of punishment in contemporary society Sentencing argues for a profound normative understanding of the relationship between sentencing and its perception by citizens vital if we are to fully comprehend the nature and significance of punishment and the particular challenges it faces as a force for social cohesion Henham explores this theme by focusing on key areas of debate within the field the treatment of gender and race in sentencing the future role of sentencing in criminal justice governance the development of new criteria for evaluating sentencing within a more socially inclusive framework Henham suggests that a greater focus on the relationship between penal ideology and the impact of sentencing in the wider community is essential for effective future policy making in this area Sentencing will be useful for both undergraduate and postgraduate students of law criminology criminal justice and sociology as well as for academics and criminal justice policymakers Restorative Justice in Transitional Settings Kerry Clamp,2016-02-12 Restorative justice is increasingly being applied to settings characterized by large scale violence and human rights abuses While many embrace this development as an important step in attempts to transform protracted conflict there are a number of conceptual challenges in transporting restorative justice from a democratic setting to one which has been affected by mass victimisation or civil war

These include responding to the seriousness and scale of harms that have been caused the blurred boundaries between victims and offenders and the difficulties associated with holding someone to account and compelling reparative activities Despite reams of paper being devoted to defining restorative justice within democratic settings where the concept first emerged restorative scholars have been slow to comment on the integration of restorative justice into the transitional justice discourse Restorative Justice in Transitional Settings brings together a number of leading scholars from around the world to respond to this gap by developing and further articulating restorative justice for transitional settings These scholars push the boundaries of restorative justice to seek more effective approaches to addressing the causes and consequences of conflict and oppression in these diverse contexts Each chapter highlights a limitation with current conceptions of restorative justice in the transitional justice literature and then suggests a way in which the limitation might be overcome This book has strong interdisciplinary value and will be of interest to criminologists legal scholars and those engaged with international relations and peace treaties
