The Making of Constitutional Democracy Paolo Sandro, 2022-01-27 This open access book addresses a palpable yet widely neglected tension in legal discourse In our everyday legal practices whether taking place in a courtroom classroom law firm or elsewhere we routinely and unproblematically talk of the activities of creating and applying the law However when legal scholars have analysed this distinction in their theories rather than simply assuming it many have undermined it if not dismissed it as untenable The book considers the relevance of distinguishing between law creation and law application and how this transcends the boundaries of jurisprudential enquiry It argues that such a distinction is also a crucial component of political theory For if there is no possibility of applying a legal rule that was created by a different institution at a previous moment in time then our current constitutional democratic frameworks are effectively empty vessels that conceal a power relationship between public authorities and citizens that is very different from the one on which constitutional democracy is grounded After problematising the most relevant objections in the literature the book presents a comprehensive defence of the distinction between creation and application of law within the structure of constitutional democracy It does so through an integrated jurisprudential methodology which combines insights from different disciplines including history anthropology political science philosophy of language and philosophy of action while also casting new light on long standing issues in public law such as the role of legal discretion in the law making process and the scope of the separation of powers doctrine The ebook editions of this book are available open access under a CC BY NC ND 4 0 licence on bloomsburycollections.com education      Cognitive Pragmatics Hans-Jörg Schmid, 2012-08-31 Speakers tend to compose their utterances in such a way that the message they want to get across is hardly ever fully encoded by the meanings of the words and the grammar they use. Instead, speakers rely on hearers adding conceptual and emotive content while interpreting the contextually appropriate meanings and intentions behind utterances. This insight, which is of course particularly relevant in all kinds of indirect figurative or humorous talk, lies at the heart of the linguistic discipline of pragmatics. If pragmatics is the study of meaning in context, then cognitive pragmatics can be broadly defined as encompassing the study of the cognitive principles and processes involved in the construal of meaning in context. While it would seem only natural that pragmatics as such should have addressed such cognitive issues, anyway it has mainly been due to the historical rooting of this discipline in the philosophy of language that psychological aspects have not been in the pragmatic limelight to date. Being part of the 9 volume series Handbooks of Pragmatics, this volume is the first to systematically survey this terrain from a wide range of perspectives. It collects state of the art contributions by leading experts from the fields of pragmatics, psycholinguistics, cognitive linguistics, clinical linguistics and historical linguistics. The volume is divided into four parts which tackle the following questions: Part I: The cognitive principles of pragmatic competence. What are the general cognitive principles underlying pragmatic competence, i.e. the skill to arrive at context dependent meanings of utterances? What are the cognitive underpinnings of language users' ability to compute or infer intended meanings in the role of hearers and to give hints as to how to decode intended meanings in the role of speakers? Part II: The psychology of pragmatics. What are the actual cognitive processes taking place during online construal of meaning in context on the basis of encoded messages? How is pragmatic competence acquired in childhood? What are the types, sources and effects of pragmatic disorders, i.e. impairments of pragmatic competence? Part III: The construal of non explicit and non literal meaning in context. What are the cognitive principles and processes involved in the construal of meanings of non explicit and indirect utterances? How do we process figurative meanings, humour and gestures? Part IV: The emergence of linguistic structures from meaning in context. What are the repercussions of the repeated construal of context dependent meanings on linguistic structures and the linguistic system? How does the system change under the influence of the construal of meanings in social situations? Reduced series price print available degruyter.de/rhenus.com
