The Early Shortwave Stations Jerome S. Berg, 2013-10-04 In July 1923 less than three years after Westinghouse station KDKA signed on company engineer Frank Conrad began regular simulcasting of its programs on a frequency in the newly discovered shortwave range It was an important event in a technological revolution that would make dependable worldwide radio communication possible for the first time In subsequent years countless stations in practically all countries followed suit taking to shortwave to extend reception domestically or reach audiences thousands of miles away Shortwave broadcasting would also have an important role in World War II and in the Cold War In this his fourth book on shortwave broadcast history the author revisits the period of his earlier work On the Short Waves 1923-1945 and focuses on the stations that were on the air in those early days The year by year account chronicles the birth and operation of the large international broadcasters as well as the numerous smaller stations that were a great attraction to the DXers or long distance radio enthusiasts of the time With more than 100 illustrations and extensive notes bibliography and index the book is also a valuable starting point for further study and research

Our Army, 1946      Adventures in Old Time Radio Brian Rogers, 2023-05-22 Before there was television before there were computers before there was the Internet with its audio and video streaming before there were cell phones iPods and iPads there was radio Beginning in the early 1920s electrical waves mysterious to many could be sent from senders or transmitters into boxes called radios in people's homes Sometimes the boxes weren't boxes at all In radio's earliest days hobbyists built radios called crystal sets with wire and empty oatmeal boxes or similar materials By 1930 radios were becoming massive pieces of wooden furniture proudly residing in living rooms At first the waves carried talks and music from transmitters in cities into radios nearby But in 1926 dependable chains or networks of radio stations were being put together with telephone wires and people in many cities could listen to the same programs simultaneously In the 1930s local vocalists and other performers were being replaced on the air by network shows that informed entertained and enlightened During the Great Depression free entertainment coming over the radio helped ease evenings spent fretting over lack of employment and unpaid bills Programs such as Fibber McGee and Molly and Jack Benny brought laughter into millions of homes Suspense and similar shows inspired terror and Dragnet and Your FBI in Peace and War brought mystery As World War II neared and all through the conflict radio instantly brought into homes everywhere news of major and minor events Because of radio's immediacy we learned the same day when Pearl Harbor was attacked when Allied soldiers landed in France and when surrender agreements were signed with Germany and Japan In his book Brian Rogers in a collection of articles based on material he has researched and written for various radio hobby publications introduces some of the events and personalities that made up the golden age of radio roughly from 1930 to 1960 and the decade preceding when radio was taking its first electronic baby steps He also shares his personal story with old time radio and how with warmly glowing vacuum tubes his own hand me down radio brought friends to a boy who thought he had no friends
