local to global levels against a backdrop of growing uncertainties The authors challenge mainstream supply oriented and neo Malthusian visions that argue for the need to increase the land area under irrigation in order to feed the world s growing population Instead they argue for a reframing of the debate concerning production processes waste food consumption and dietary patterns whilst proposing alternative strategies to improve water and land productivity putting the interests of marginalized and disenfranchized groups upfront The book highlights how accessing water for FSN can be challenging for small holders vulnerable and marginalized women and men and how water allocation systems and reform processes can negatively affect local people s informal rights The book argues for the need to improve policy coherence across water land and food and is original in making a case for strengthening the relationship between the human rights to water and food especially for marginalized women and men It will be of great interest to practitioners students and researchers working on water and food issues
