Matricide in Language Miglena Nikolchina, 2020-10-06 The nexus of psychoanalytic literary and philosophical approaches in this book focuses on an intertextual reading of Woolf and Kristeva in order to address the enigma of the persistent suppression of women's contributions to culture In spite of the efforts of feminist theory and history to turn the tide this process is with us still I am the first of a new genus Mary Wollstonecraft When I looked around I saw and heard of none like me Mary Shelley I look everywhere for grandmothers and find none Elizabeth Barrett Browning Why isn't there a tradition of the mothers Virginia Woolf Women have no past no history Simone de Beauvoir I look for myself throughout the centuries and I don't see myself anywhere Helene Cixous As Woolf noted strange spaces of silence separate the solitary female utterances throughout history The brutal vicissitudes of the contemporary reception of feminist thinkers crushed between traditional academia and an anti intellectualism that describes itself as activism are symptoms of the fact that the conditions which produced the strange spaces of silence and made the repetitive generic loneliness from Wollstonecraft to Cixous possible are still operative They have found their way into the present age as reactionary conformity that manages to discredit any notion of feminine specificity or freedom that is not based on seduction which means not based on reproduction and consumption Kristeva The intertextual approach to Kristeva and Woolf brings to light matricide as the silent engine behind the stammering of female temporality Matricide is offered as an entrance to the conceptualization of the cultural ramifications of a language that wavers between hypnotic passion and murder As Joan Scott has demonstrated the oscillations between phantasies of uniqueness and phantasies of fusion are characteristic of women s movements Matricide in Language claims that these fantasies are subtended by imaginary matricide and that they can explain the extreme discursive practices that are characteristic of the debate in and around feminism

Blood Relations Chris Knight,2013-10-15 The emergence of symbolic culture is generally linked with the development of the hunter gatherer adaptation based on a sexual division of labor This original and ingenious book presents a new theory of how this symbolic domain originated Integrating perspectives of evolutionary biography and social anthropology within a Marxist framework Chris Knight rejects the common assumption that human culture was a modified extension of primate behavior and argues instead that it was the product of an immense social sexual and political revolution initiated by women Culture became established says Knight when evolving human females began to assert collective control over their own sexuality refusing sex to all males except those who came to them with provisions Women usually timed their ban on sexual relations with their periods of infertility while they were menstruating and to the extent that their solidarity drew women together these periods tended to occur in synchrony The result was that every month with the onset of menstruation sexual relations were ruptured in a collective ritualistic way as the prelude to each successful hunting expedition This ritual act was the means through which women motivated men not only to hunt but also to concentrate energies on bringing back the meat Knight shows how this hypothesis sheds light on the roots of such cultural traditions as totemic rituals incest and menstrual taboos blood sacrifice and hunters atonement rites Providing detailed ethnographic documentation he also explains how Native American Australian Aboriginal and other magico religious myths can be read as derivatives of the same symbolic logic
