They line the dusty roads outside the tiny villages of China's Henan province, several hours' drive from Beijing--mounds of dirt funneled into crudely shaped cones, like a phalanx of earthen bamboo hats. To the uninitiated, they look like a clever new way of turning over fields--an agricultural innovation, perhaps, meant to increase crop yields. But the locals know the truth. Buried under the pyramids, which now number in the thousands, are their mothers and fathers, brothers, sisters and cousins, all victims of AIDS. Like silent sentries, the dirt graves are a testament to China's worst-kept secret.

They are the reason Dr. David Ho has come to China. The New York City--based virologist was named TIME's 1996 Person of the Year for his pioneering work on the drug therapies that have largely quelled the AIDS epidemic in the U.S. and Europe. Now Ho is confronting the AIDS virus in its most populous stronghold. Up to 1 million Chinese are HIV positive, and that number could easily grow to 10 million by 2010, according to the Joint U.N. Program on AIDS. If current trends continue for another decade or so, China could overtake Africa, where 29 million people have been infected with the virus.

It's to head off that scenario that Ho has traveled more than a dozen times to China over the past three years, setting up labs, visiting clinics, gathering blood samples, educating health workers and negotiating the intricately layered bureaucracy of the Chinese health establishment. Ho's efforts--and those of other AIDS activists--finally paid off last week when, on World AIDS Day, the Chinese government took a lesson from its sluggish response to the severe acute respiratory syndrome (SARS) epidemic and launched its first big AIDS public-awareness campaign, complete with posters, TV spots and an unprecedented visit by Premier Wen Jiabao to a Beijing hospital, where he shook hands with AIDS patients.

TIME accompanied Ho and his team from the Aaron Diamond AIDS Research Center (ADARC) for two weeks earlier this year as he traveled from Kunming, the cosmopolitan capital of Yunnan province, where his drug-treatment and vaccine projects are based, to the remote border town of Ruili, where heavy heroin trafficking and a thriving sex trade create a perfect HIV breeding ground, to Beijing, for his meetings with party leaders, including the newly appointed Minister of Health, Wu Yi. Everywhere Ho went, his mission was the same: to persuade Chinese officials to step up their modest anti-AIDS efforts and commit the resources necessary to launch a comprehensive nationwide program, modeled on the projects he has begun in Yunnan.

KUNMING, YUNNAN

The neatly dressed husband and wife are in their 50s and comfortably average looking. Their once-smooth dark skin is now veined and burnished to a proud sheen, reflecting the decades of hard work they have put into raising a family, earning their salaries and, now, battling HIV.

Secret Plague:

15 Secrets to a Wonderful Life Michael Youssef, 2008-03-14 Dr Youssef shares the plan and process for living a positive life He takes points from each of the fifteen chapters and casts them into easily understood modern contexts to show how it's not what we think or say to ourselves that makes us positive it's what we allow to become part of us Stalin's Secret Weapon Anthony Rimmington, 2018 A chilling reassessment of the Soviet Union's advances in biological warfare and the West's inadvertent contributions "Rapt in Secret Studies" Laurie Johnson, 2010-07-12 Rapt in Secret Studies Emerging Shakespeares is a collection of new essays in Shakespeare Studies from a generation of scholars presently emerging out of Australia and New Zealand These 18 essays respond in a myriad of ways to the challenge of Prospero's phrase from The Tempest in which he tells his daughter Miranda that in his life before the island he had been rapt in secret studies to an early modern audience these words were likely to mean much more than a predilection for the black arts as modern audiences tend to hear in them Each of the key words used by Prospero evoked a range of meanings in early modern times to which the emerging scholars represented in this collection responded by imagining new pathways in Shakespeare Studies a field of study that has in recent times risked being marginalised even within the traditional liberal arts The secret studies of which Prospero speaks are in fact more liberal than dark and so the response by new scholars to a challenge issued by one of Shakespeare's characters more than four centuries ago has a renewed sense of relevance in the academy today The essays are divided into three sections each of which is oriented toward meanings that are specifically associated with one of the key terms in Prospero's phrase The rapt section has essays concerned with excess in its various forms jealousy obsession sex violence and even death as well as with travel and its impact on ways of knowing about the world In the secret section the nature of things about which the early modern could scarcely speak are taken into consideration with essays on prevailing early modern myths infidelities stillborn children contagion and the instruments of secrecy such as gossip and spies Finally in the study section essays cover issues related both to early modern textual practice the use of historical source materials in Shakespeare's writing questions of multiple authorship and the issue of early modern style and kinds of drama and to more modern scholarly practice such as the role of Shakespeare in the New Bibliography and the New Historicism
