Modelling Spatial Housing Markets Theory Analysis And Policy:

Modelling Spatial Housing Markets Geoffrey Meen, 2012-12-06 Spatial fixity is one of the characteristics that distinguishes housing from most other goods and services in the economy. In general, housing cannot be moved from one part of the country to another in response to shortages or excesses in particular areas. The modelling of housing markets and the interlinkages between markets at different spatial levels—international, national, regional, and urban—are the main themes of this book. A second major theme is disaggregation, not only in terms of space but also between households. The book argues that aggregate time series models of housing markets of the type widely used in Britain and also in other countries in the past have become less relevant in a world of increasing income dispersion. Typically, aggregate relationships will break down except under special conditions. We can no longer assume that traditional location or tenure patterns, for example, will continue in the future. The book has four main components. First, it discusses trends in housing markets both internationally and within nations. Second, the book develops theoretical housing models at each spatial scale, starting with national models, moving down to the regional level, and then to urban models. Third, the book provides empirical estimates of the models, and finally, the models are used for policy analysis. Analysis ranges over a wide variety of topics, including explanations for differing international house price trends, the causes of housing cycles, the role of credit markets, regional housing market interactions, and the role of housing in urban/suburban population drift.

Housing Economics and Public Policy Anthony O'Sullivan, Kenneth Gibb, 2008-04-15 This book is a timely assessment of 20 years of progress in the field of housing economics and its application to policy and practice. Two decades on from the publication of Duncan MacLennan's influential Housing Economics, 16 leading housing experts, both academics and policy makers from across the world, now honour MacLennan's contributions. The chapters here present a contemporary survey of key issues in housing, from urban housing markets and sub-market modelling to the economics of social housing, the basis for housing planning, economic analysis of neighbourhoods, and the connections between academic work and policy development. For students, researchers, and practitioners in housing, urban economics, and social policy, Housing Economics and Public Policy provides up-to-date and comprehensive reviews of major areas of the housing economics literature, sheds light on the economic, social, and spatial processes that affect housing, includes discussion of major areas of cutting-edge housing economics research, and identifies continuing gaps. It presents a synthesis of housing economics research on both sides of the Atlantic, assesses the impact of theory on policy and practice.

Planning, Public Policy and Property Markets David Adams, Craig Watkins, Michael White, 2008-04-15 The focus of this book is on how public policy, and especially the planning system, both shapes and reflects the essential characteristics of land and property markets. It challenges the common misconceptions that property markets operate in isolation from public policy and that planning permission is the only significant form of state intervention in the market. Planning, Public Policy, Property Markets contends that effective state-market relations in land and property are critical to a prosperous economy and a robust democracy especially at a time when development aims to be sustainable and environmental protection needs to be matched by urban and rural regeneration The book thus reflects an increased realisation among academics and practitioners of the importance of theoretical integration and joined up policy making Its rounded perspective addresses a significant weakness in the academic literature and will encourage broader debate and a more pluralist agenda for property research Prominent contributors present important new research on different market sectors and policy arenas including regeneration and renewal housing growth housing planning transport and economic competitiveness while the editors specifically draw out more general lessons on the dynamic nature of the state property market relationship in a modern economy This book will encourage all those involved in property research who strive for theoretical and practical connectivity to demonstrate that just as property market operations cannot be analysed without understanding state processes policy decisions cannot be taken without an appreciation of how the market operates

The SAGE Handbook of Housing Studies David F Clapham, William A V Clark, Kenneth Gibb, 2012-04-20 Cross disciplinary and critical in its approach The SAGE Handbook of Housing Studies is an elucidating look at the key issues within the field It covers the study of housing retrospectively but also analyses the future directions of research and theory demonstrating how it can contribute to wider debates in the social sciences A comprehensive introductory chapter is followed by four parts offering complete coverage of the area Markets examines the perception of housing markets how they function in different contexts and the importance of housing behaviour and neighbourhoods Approaches looks at how other disciplines economics geography and sociology have informed the direction of housing studies Context traces the interactions between housing studies and other aspects of society providing context to debate housing through issues of space social welfare and the environment Policy is a multi disciplinary and comprehensive take on the major policy issues and the causes and possible solutions of housing problems such as regeneration and homelessness Edited by leading names in the field and including international contributions the book is a stimulating wide ranging read that will be an invaluable resource for academics and researchers in geography urban studies sociology social policy economics and politics

The Routledge Handbook of Housing Economics Kenneth Gibb, Chris Leishman, Alex Marsh, Geoffrey Meen, Rachel Ong ViforJ, Craig Watkins, 2024-02-29 The Routledge Handbook of Housing Economics brings together an international panel of contributors to present a comprehensive overview of this important field within economics Housing occupies an increasingly central role in modern society dominating consumer assets and spending forming an important part of social policy and being a large enough market to impact the macroeconomy This handbook tackles these themes along with other critical issues such as intergenerational housing inequality and the efficiency and social justice of housing interventions This volume is structured in four main parts It starts with eight chapters in microeconomics and housing This is followed by two shorter sections on macroeconomics and finance The final main part of the book is concerned with eight chapters on policy dimensions While many of the chapters are rooted in mainstream economics and finance applied to housing there are also chapters stressing institutional behavioural and political economy orientations as well as those that explicitly challenge more mainstream accounts The contributing authors are based in Europe North America and Australia and all draw in international literature to provide state of the art reviews of their topics This carefully curated handbook will be essential reading for advanced students researchers and policy makers in housing economics urban economics urban planning public economics and real estate economics and finance Chapter 22 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license

Urban Planning and the Housing Market Nicole Gurran, Glen Bramley, 2017-05-31 This book re-examines the role of urban policy and planning in relation to the housing market in an era of global uncertainty and change The relationship between planning and the housing market is a contested problem across research policy and practice Problems with housing supply and affordability in many nations have been linked to planning system constraints while the global financial crisis has raised new questions about the role of urban planning regulation and processes in responding to housing market trends With reference to international cases from the United Kingdom the United States Ireland Hong Kong and Australia the book examines how different systems of urban planning and governance address complex and dynamic housing market trends It also offers practical guidance on how urban planning can support an efficient supply of appropriate and affordable homes in preferred locations A detailed study which explains and decodes the workings of the planning system and housing market this book will be of particular interest to scholars of human geography and urban planning as well as housing policy makers and practitioners To view Nicole Gurran's related TEDx talk please visit Housing Crisis How about housing solutions TEDx Sydney 2018 <http://bit.ly/2psfpMw>

The Blackwell Companion to the Economics of Housing Susan J. Smith, Beverley A. Searle, 2010-01-22 The Blackwell Companion to the Economics of Housing will help students and professionals alike to explore key elements of the housing economy: home prices, housing wealth, mortgage debt, and financial risk. Features 24 original essays including an editorial introduction and three section overviews. Includes 39 world class authors from a mix of educational and financial organizations in the UK, Europe, Australia, and North America. Broadly based, scholarly, and accessible, serving students and professionals who wish to understand how today's housing economy works. Profiles the role and relevance of housing wealth, the management of mortgage debt, and the pitfalls and potential of hedging housing risk. Key topics include the housing price bubble and crash, the subprime mortgage crisis in the US and its aftermath, the links between housing wealth, the macroeconomy, and the welfare of home occupiers, the mitigation of credit and housing investment risks. Specific case studies help to illustrate concepts along with new data sets and analyses to illustrate empirical points.

Markets and Institutions in Real Estate and Construction Michael Ball, 2008-04-15 The book explains why the real estate and construction industries are organised in the ways they are and then relates those characteristics to long term market behaviour. It covers market dynamics, supply and demand, the interaction of property development and construction, and examines institutions and market structures. Real estate development and construction tend to be separate subjects in the literature. But construction is an inevitable part of any property development process and so has a major influence on the institutional structure of development. Markets, Institutions in Real Estate Construction argues that these structures are best explained as a series of modern economic theories based on competition and current production technologies. Offers focus and breadth and deals with controversial debates. Economic arguments made accessible through a non-technical writing style. Presents long run international comparison of property market behaviour. Reflects internationalisation of property and construction markets.

Understanding Affordability Geoffrey Meen, Christine Whitehead, 2020-07-08 For many younger and lower income people, housing affordability continues to worsen. Based on the academic research of two distinguished housing economists and stimulated by working with governments across the world, this wide ranging book sets out clear theoretical and empirical frameworks to tackle one of today's most important socio-economic issues. Housing unaffordability arises from complex forces and a prerequisite to effective policy is understanding the causes of rising house prices and rents and the interactions between housing, housing finance, and the macroeconomy. The authors challenge many of the conventional wisdoms in housing policy and offer innovative recommendations to improve affordability.

Measuring and Explaining House Price Developments Paul de Vries, 2010 This study discusses ways of measuring and explaining the development of house prices. The goal of the research underpinning this dissertation was to develop a methodological framework for studying these developments. This framework relates first to correcting for changes in the composition of dwellings and second to the fundamentals of the price development. Using the weighted repeat sales method and sale price appraisal ratio SPAR method house price indexes were developed for the Netherlands Both the Dutch land registry office and Statistics Netherlands publish the SPAR based house price index monthly To explain and predict changes in prices a house price model is presented As suggested in literature on western housing markets the Dutch house price developments can be explained by demand oriented short run term variables and a long run term variable

Accessibility, Equity and Efficiency Karst T. Geurs,Roberto Patuelli,Tomaz Ponce Dentinho,2016-02-26 Leading researchers from around the world show in this volume the importance of accessibility in contemporary issues such as rural depopulation investments in public services and public transport and transport infrastructure investments in Europe The trade offs between accessibility economic development and equity are comprehensively examined and a variety of approaches to measuring accessibility and equality presented The book s interdisciplinary contributions also provide different geographical contexts from the US to various European and developing countries and cover ex ante and ex post evaluation of transport investment Improving transport accessibility is a main objective in transport policy and planning in developed and developing countries all over the world Investment is motivated by the need to develop and or reduce spatial or social inequalities However the economic and equity implications of investments in transport are not straightforward The concepts of accessibility and equity can be defined and operationalized in many different ways influencing outcomes and conclusions Moreover equity and efficiency goals are often conflicting Accessibility models not only help to explain spatial and transport patterns in developed and developing countries but are also powerful tools to explain the equity and efficiency impacts of urban and transport policies and projects This state of the art overview of the accessibility economic efficiency equity relationship will appeal to researchers as well as transport and urban planners interested in accessibility issues and transport regional developments

Mass Appraisal Methods Tom Kauko,Maurizio d'Amato,2009-01-28 This book takes a cross disciplinary and cross cultural look at mass appraisal expertise for property valuation in different market conditions and offers some cutting edge approaches The editors establish an international platform and present the scientific debate as well as practical feasibility considerations Heretic and orthodox valuation methods are assessed based on specific criteria partly technical and partly institutional Methodological evaluation is approached using two types of criteria operational concerns about how to determine property value differentials between spatial and functional units of real estate in a valid and reliable way technical criteria and the kind of market circumstances being operated in institutional criteria. While technical criteria are relatively well researched, there is little theoretically informed work on the connection between country context and selection of property appraisal methods. The book starts with an examination of current mass property appraisal practices, presenting case studies from widely differing markets from the American and Dutch where regression based methods have been used successfully for some time to the Eastern European and other emerging economies where limitations have to be compensated by focusing on the modelling assumptions. The second part of the book looks at sophisticated modelling approaches, some of which represent combinations of elements from two or more techniques. Whatever the exact modelling approach, the requirements are always high for the quality of the data and suitability of the method. In the final section, methods are evaluated and compared according to technical criteria and against institutional contexts. With its exceptionally wide coverage of valuation issues, Mass Appraisal Methods an international perspective for property valuers addresses property valuation problems common to different countries and approaches applicable in both developed and emerging economies.

The Microstructures of Housing Markets Susan J. Smith, Moira Munro, 2013-10-31 House prices and mortgage debt have moved to centre stage in the management of national economies, regional development and neighbourhood change. Describing, analysing and understanding how housing markets work within and across these scales of economy and society has never been more urgent. But much more is known about the macro scales than the microstructures and about the economic rather than social drivers of housing market dynamics. This book redresses the balance. It shows that housing markets are social, cultural and psychological as well as economic affairs. This multidisciplinary approach is helpful in understanding the economic staples of supply, demand, price and information. It also casts new light on the emotional and political economy of markets.

Residential Real Estate Anupam Nanda, 2019-03-20 Residential Real Estate introduces readers to the economic fundamentals and emerging issues in housing markets. The book investigates housing market issues within local, regional, national and international contexts in order to provide students with an understanding of the economic principles that underpin residential property markets. Key topics covered include Location choice in urban areas, Housing supply and demand, Housing finance and housing as an asset class, Demographic shifts and implications for housing, Sustainable homes and digitalisation in housing. Drawing on market level information, readers are encouraged to recognise the supply and demand drivers and modelling of dynamic housing markets at various spatial scales and the implications of trends within an urban and regional context, e.g. urbanisation, ageing population, migration, digitalisation. With research based discussions and coverage of relevant literature, this is an ideal textbook for students of residential real estate, property and related business studies courses at UG and PG levels as well as a reference book with research topics for researchers. This book will also be of interest to professionals and policymakers.
