Modern Lifestyles, Lower Energy Intake and Micronutrient Status Klaus Pietrzik, 2012-12-06 Malnutrition in Western Europe The question seems incredible yet one fourth of the costs caused by nutrition related illness result at least partly from micronutrient malnutrition The experts in this book look for the answer among recently improved data about our changing lifestyles and eating habits They suggest that reduced calorie intake is leading to critical micronutrient status in some population groups in Western Europe The problem stems in part from the difficulty in estimating the milder stages of undernourishment in part from the difficulty in believing that people suffer from poor nutrition in the midst of overconsumption The chapters specifically examine the functional consequences of the present marginal nutritional deficiency The authors are epidemiologists nutritionists chemists and physicians representing nine European countries Their contributions paint a complete picture of international expertise on micronutrient malnutrition Modern Lifestyles, Lower Energy Intake, and Micronutrient Status Klaus Pietrzik, 1991 National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1991 Nutrition Abstracts and Reviews, 1992 Dietary Fibre — A Component of Food Thomas F. Schweizer, Christine A. Edwards, 2013-03-07 Dietary fibre is now recognized as a vital component of good daily nutrition yet its properties and specific role in the digestive system are still being investigated The involvement of government agencies the food industry and health professionals as well as public interest make this global overview Dietary Fibre A Component of Food an important contribution to the literature on the subject The cooperation of experts from different research centers and their peer review of each other's papers enhance the value of the book since it presents consolidated views and objective assessments on such key issues as fibre analysis and mineral bioavailability The seventeen chapters are grouped into three sections The background papers deal with biochemical and analytical characteristics e g the physico chemical properties of food polysaccharides and bacterial fermentation in the colon The papers on physiological effects deal with the physiological function of dietary fibre throughout the gastrointestinal tract its influence on protein lipid and carbohydrate digestion and absorption and its role in bile acid metabolism and faecal bulking The third section of papers focuses on the prevention and treatment of disease gastrointestinal disorders obesity diabetes mellitus and hyperlipidemias Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70 Thirst David J. Ramsay, David Booth, 2012-12-06 At one time or another everyone has said I am thirsty Yet what causes this sensation of thirst It is obvious that a certain quantity of fluid must be present for the body to function normally How does a water deficit in the body then influence drinking habits But supposing the physiological need is met what about the psychological need or social need Water is certainly the most necessary fluid then why do we humans often prefer other beverages even at great cost of effort or money or health The subject of thirst and drinking behavior are uniquely discussed in this book For the first time both the physiological and the psychological aspects of water and beverage consumption are examined in one volume The many recent developments concerning how a lack of water is signalled physiologically and processed neurally to affect drinking behavior are critically surveyed Prospects for understanding the cultural and sensory influences on beverage consumption are mapped out The thirty one chapters by authorities in the field were all mutually reviewed and revised in the light of precirculated comments and round table discussions Together they provide a complete picture of the current state of knowledge on what determines fluid consumption in human beings and animals
