Modern Chinese Warfare, 1795-1989 Bruce A. Elleman, 2001 A survey of Chinese warfare both internal and international from the opium wars of the 1840s through to the end of Vietnam Modern Chinese Warfare, 1795-1989 Bruce A. Elleman, 2005-07-28 Why did the Chinese empire collapse and why did it take so long for a new government to reunite China

Modern Chinese Warfare 1795 1989 seeks to answer these questions by exploring the most important domestic and international conflicts over the past two hundred years from the last half of the Qing empire through to modern day China It reveals how most of China s wars during this period were fought to preserve unity in China and examines their distinctly cyclical pattern of imperial decline domestic chaos and finally the creation of a new unifying dynasty By 1989 this cycle appeared complete but the author asks how long this government will be able to hold power Exposing China as an imperialist country and one which has often manipulated western powers in its favour Bruce Elleman seeks to redress the views of China as a victimised nation Operational Art in Modern Chinese Warfare Peter R. Ofstedal, Naval War College (U.S.). Joint Military Operations Department, 1996 Medieval Chinese Warfare 300-900 David Graff, 2003-09-02

Shortly after 300 AD barbarian invaders from Inner Asia toppled China's Western Jin dynasty leaving the country divided and at war for several centuries. Despite this, the empire gradually formed a unified imperial order. Medieval Chinese Warfare 300-900 explores the military strategies, institutions, and wars that reconstructed the Chinese empire that has survived into modern times. Drawing on classical Chinese sources and the best modern scholarship from China and Japan, David A. Graff connects military affairs with political and social developments to show how China's history was shaped by war. A Military History of Modern China Peter Worthing, 2007-09-30

Traces the history of Imperial China, Republican China, and the People's Republic of China, revealing how the war and the military have influenced the course of Chinese history. A History of the Modern Chinese Army Xiaobing Li, 2007-06-01

Since the establishment of the Red Army in 1927, China's military has responded to profound changes in Chinese society, particularly its domestic politics, shifting economy, and evolving threat perceptions. Recently, tensions between China and Taiwan and other East Asian nations have aroused great interest in the extraordinary transformation and new capabilities of the Chinese army. In A History of the Modern Chinese Army, Xiaobing Li, a former member of the People's Liberation Army (PLA), provides a comprehensive examination of the PLA from the Cold War to the beginning of the twenty-first century, that highlights the military's central function in modern Chinese society. In the 1940s, the Chinese army was in its infancy, and many soldiers were rural conscripts and volunteers who had received little formal schooling. The Chinese military rapidly increased its mobility and weapon strength, and the Korean War and Cold War offered intense combat experience that not only allowed soldiers to hone their fighting techniques but also helped China to develop military tactics tailored to the surrounding countries whose armies posed the most immediate threats. Yet even in the 1970s, the completion of a middle school education (nine years) was considered above average, and only 4 percent of the 224 top Chinese generals had any college credit hours. However, in 1995, the high command began to institute massive reforms to transform the PLA from a labor-intensive force into a technology-intensive army. Continually seeking more urban conscripts and emphasizing higher education, the PLA Reserve Officer Training and Selection program recruited students from across the nation. These reservists would become commissioned officers upon graduation, and they majored in atomic physics, computer science, and electrical engineering. Grounding the text in previously unreleased official Chinese government and military records, as well as the personal testimonies of more than two hundred PLA soldiers, Li charts the development of China's armed forces against the backdrop of Chinese society, cultural traditions, political history, and recent technological advancements. A History of the Modern Chinese Army links China's military modernization to the country's growing international and economic power and provides a unique perspective on China's establishment and maintenance of one of the world's most advanced military forces Chinese Military Strategy in the Third Indochina War Edward C. A Modern Chinese Journey to the West Ulric Killian, 2006 This book begins and perhaps should end with an excerpt from the writings of the late eminent Chinese scholar Fung Yu-lan or Feng Youlan 1895-1990 who wrote The ancient Chinese culture is an inherent factor determining the Chinese style If the latter enunciation of Fung Yu-lan stirs one's interest in Chinese culture for the typical reasons such as an interest in ancient periods of China romanticism which focuses on the exotic and mysterious for example Zen Buddhism and Taoism or simply as the source of exotic objects of art then all the better. Because for a typical Westerner bound in Western conventionalism and parochialism engendering an understanding of the policies and practices of the People's Republic of China, China necessitates understanding a modern China in light of Chinese traditional culture or philosophy or a China in antiquity. The consequence of Chinese traditional culture affects many political economy concerns of modern China ranging from socio-economic, political to international trade and other concerns. Indeed, philosophical antecedents influence modern Chinese policies and practices.

A Military History of the Cold War, 1944-1962 Jonathan M. House, 2014-04-28

The Cold War did not culminate in World War III as so many in the 1950s and 1960s feared; yet it spawned a host of military engagements that affected millions of lives. This book is the first comprehensive multinational overview of military affairs during the early Cold War beginning with conflicts during World War II in Warsaw, Athens, and Saigon and ending with the Cuban Missile Crisis. A major theme of this account is the relationship between government policy and military preparedness and strategy. Author Jonathan M. House tells of generals engaging in policy confrontations with their governments' political leaders among them Anthony Eden, Nikita Khrushchev, and John F. Kennedy, many of whom made military decisions that hamstrung their own political goals. In the pressure-cooker atmosphere of atomic preparedness, politicians as well as soldiers seemed instinctively to prefer military solutions to political problems. And national security policies had military implications that took on a life of their own. The invasion of South Korea convinced European policy makers that effective deterrence and containment required building up and maintaining credible forces. Desire to strengthen the North Atlantic alliance militarily accelerated the rearmament of West Germany and the drive for its sovereignty. In addition to examining the major confrontations, nuclear and conventional, between Washington, Moscow, and Beijing, including the crises over Berlin and Formosa, House traces often overlooked military operations against the insurgencies of the era, such as French efforts in Indochina and Algeria and British struggles in Malaya, Kenya, Cyprus, and Aden. Now more than fifty years after the events, House describes understanding the origins and trajectory of the Cold War as important as ever. By the late 1950s, the United States had sent forces to Vietnam and the Middle East, setting the stage for future conflicts in both regions. House's account of the complex relationship between diplomacy and military action directly relates to the insurgencies, counterinsurgencies, and confrontations that now occupy our attention across the globe.

From Red Cliffs to Chosin: the Chinese Way Of War Major James G. Pangelinan, 2015-11-06

This monograph examines Chinese warfare and suggests that three and a half millennia of Chinese military history have produced a distinctive and enduring Chinese Way Of War. While the art and science of war in China have evolved considerably throughout its history, the characteristics and philosophies of its style of warfare contain some propensities that endure from antiquity to the present. They are The Chinese military orientation focuses more on the strategic and operational levels of war than the tactical The Chinese prefer strategic maneuver warfare to attritional or other forms of warfare Chinese warfare emphasizes the importance of shaping operations the arrangement of the conditions of the war campaign or battlefield in one's favor before initiating combat Finally deception and unorthodox warfare play a leading role in Chinese martial philosophy and conduct of war These four propensities of the Chinese way of war are general trends that emerge when the entire span of Chinese warfare is broadly considered Rooted in the philosophy and theories of the great military classics of ancient Chinese these propensities provide continuities in the war fighting styles traditions and preferences of Chinese armies throughout history While none of the four propensities of Chinese warfare are practiced by China alone when aggregated they form a broad approach to war fighting that is unlike that of any other country in the world The distinctiveness of the Chinese way of war is a product of China's unique cultural traditions religious and social philosophies and historical evolution
