Ramsay, 2003-01-01. Although more women in France have entered political life than ever before the fact remains that there are fewer women representatives in the French parliament than there were after the Second World War. In a new and original approach the author presents an overview and analysis of the emerging body of text by or on women who have held high political office in France The argument is that writing about women and politics has not just described or reflected women's slow but now substantial entry into political life it has played a major part in shaping the parity debate and its outcomes Interviews with political women such as Huguette Bouchardeau Simone Veil or Edith Cresson inserted in the text demonstrate the emergence and circulation of a new common discourse focused on the issue of whether women in politics make or should make a difference A close reading of the various texts examined in this book and their connection to new public counter discourses in France suggest that a re writing of power is indeed occurring

French Mediterraneans Patricia M. E. Lorcin, Todd Shepard, 2016-05 While the Mediterranean is often considered a distinct unified space recent scholarship on the early modern history of the sea has suggested that this perspective is essentially a Western one devised from the vantage point of imperial power that historically patrolled the region's seas and controlled its ports By contrast for the peoples of its southern shores the Mediterranean was polymorphous shifting with the economic and seafaring exigencies of the moment Nonetheless by the nineteenth century the idea of a monolithic Mediterranean had either been absorbed by or imposed on the populations of the region In French Mediterraneans editors Patricia M E Lorcin and Todd Shepard offer a collection of scholarship that reveals the important French element in the nineteenth and twentieth century creation of the singular Mediterranean These essays provide a critical study of space and movement through new approaches to think about the maps migrations and margins of the sea in the French imperial and transnational context By reconceptualizing the Mediterranean this volume illuminates the diversity of connections between places and polities that rarely fit models of nation state allegiances or preordained geographies
