Global Maritime Military Strategy, 1980-2023 Keitaro Ushirogata, 2025-03-17 This open access book is an ambitious study about how to use comparative methods to analyze contemporary military strategy in the maritime domain Based on the three strategic concepts of area denial sea control and power projection this book analyzes the intensive conventional capabilities of six major powers military strategies These include the United States the United Kingdom and Japan the so called sea powers and Russia China and India which are usually recognized as land powers Through the analysis this book aims to accomplish the following three main objectives 1 To reconsider the basic concepts of maritime military strategic studies which have not changed for almost one hundred years and to propose a new analytical framework based on the following three elements as well as verifying the appropriateness of this framework a The capability with which a country can deny military threat against its territory through the maritime domain within the geographic theater i e roughly one thousand to two thousand kilometers from its coastline area denial b The capability with which a country can obtain military superiority or disrupt an adversary s military superiority in the open ocean sea control c The capability with which a country can project military power from the maritime domain to other countries territories accomplishing military strategic objectives power projection 2 To verify the six major powers long term military strategic objectives for example whether the country aims to enhance its power in the maritime domain or to project its military power to the other countries areas beyond the maritime domain to do this by analyzing each country s force building directions In addition this book assesses each country s capability for high intensive conflict and unravels each security military strategic objectives 3 By examining the strategic objectives of major powers this book may contribute to establishing Japan s future defense strategy

Military Strategy of Great Powers Håkan Edström, Jacob Westberg, 2021-09-20 This book explores the military strategies of the five system determining great powers during the twenty first century The book s point of departure is that analyses of countries defence strategies should acknowledge that states come in various shapes and sizes and that their strategic choices are affected by their perceptions of their position in the international system and by power asymmetries between more and less resourceful states This creates a diversity in strategies that is often overlooked in theoretically oriented analyses The book examines how five major powers the United States China the United Kingdom France and Russia have adjusted their strategies to improve or maintain their relative position and to manage power asymmetries during the twenty first century It also develops and applies an analytical framework for exploring and categorising the strategies pursued by the five major powers which combines elements of structural realism with research on power transition theory and status competition The concluding chapter addresses questions related to stability and change in the present international system This book will be of interest to students of strategic studies foreign policy and International Relations      The Administration's Decision to License the Chinese Long March Launch Vehicle United States. Congress. House. Committee on Science, Space, and Technology,1989      Military Power And The Advance Of Technology Seymour J. Deitchman,2019-03-04 This book deals with the basic facts of the military industrial complex examining its institutional dynamics and constitutional barriers to change It shows how simplistic journalistic prescriptions and trivial observations fail to do justice to the enormous complexity of an industrial economy

Military Strategy Vasiliĭ Danilovich Sokolovskii,1972      Guide for Professional Reading for Officers of the United States Navy and Marine Corps United States. Bureau of Naval Personnel,      Nuclear Strategy in the Twenty-First Century Stephen J. Cimbala,2000-05-30 The future of nuclear weapons and nuclear strategy in the 21st century is not entirely predictable from the Cold War past Nor is it easy to foresee on the basis of what has happened since the Soviet Union collapsed in 1991 Cimbala contends that nuclear weapons and the psychology of nuclear deterrence will remain important after 2000 but the character of that importance will change No longer will nuclear weapons be the dominators of military technology Instead advanced technology conventional weapons based on information and electronics will supplant nuclear weapons as the instruments of military supremacy in the 21st century What Cimbala asks can be expected of nuclear weapons in the 21st century given what we have learned from previous experience in the Cold War and in the 1990s Cimbala expects that nuclear weapons will spread among currently non nuclear states and states with regional grievances or hegemonic aspirations will seek to deploy small nuclear forces as deterrents against neighbors or against outside intervention by the United States in regional conflicts Regional rogue states may also obtain nuclear weapons Nonetheless as Cimbala explains the international balance of power is unlikely to change As he makes clear power will be less dependent on deployed military platforms and more dependent on information warfare A thoughtful and provocative analysis that will be of particular interest to policy makers scholars and other researchers involved with arms control security studies and international relations      Disarmament Army Library (U.S.),1960      The Diffusion of Military Technology and Ideas Emily O. Cordesman,Steven Colley,2016-01-12 China s emergence as a global economic superpower and as a major regional military power in Asia and the Pacific has had a major impact on its relations with the United States and its neighbors China was the driving factor in the new strategy the United States announced in 2012 that called for a rebalance of U S forces to the Asia Pacific region At the same time China s actions on its borders in the East China Sea and in the South China Sea have shown that it is steadily expanding its geopolitical role in the Pacific and having a steadily increasing impact on the strategy and military developments in other Asian powers

Soviet Nuclear Weapons Policy William C.
