Kleinman, 1980 To find more information about Rowman and Littlefield titles please visit www.rowmanlittlefield.com The History of Human Populations P. M. G. Harris, 2003-08-30 Building upon models set forth in Volume I of this work Harris turns his attention to populations on the move Through examples from literature on migration the Atlantic slave trade and slave demography and urbanization this study demonstrates how all types of migration free and forced long distance and local build up and are then absorbed into populations according to the same patterns that characterize populations in general What causes these few closely related trends to reappear Harris argues is the way structures of populations alter according to a standard absorption of these migrations and react to other events via changes in births deaths and composition by age and sex Harris finds that something fundamental in the process of demographic renewal consistently imprints a few common shapes upon many kinds of demographic as well as social and economic developments Fresh perspectives on the business of the slave trade and the much discussed modern shifts from agriculture into other employments and from countryside to town or city illustrate how ubiquitously and how fundamentally demographically generated trends shape social and economic movements A future volume will identify and explain the origins of such ever present patterns of change in the dynamics of fertility mortality and demographic renewal

The Degrowth Alternative Diana Stuart, Ryan Gunderson, Brian Petersen, 2020-11-01 Degrowth is a planned economic contraction in wealthy countries that reduces production and consumption and by extension greenhouse gas emissions and stresses on global ecosystems to sustainable levels within ecological limits This book explores the idea of degrowth as an economic alternative to offer a more sustainable and just future A growing number of scientists and scholars now recognize that a system that continues to prioritize economic growth will prevent us from effectively addressing the dual environmental crises of climate change and biodiversity loss To establish the case for degrowth the text opens by posing critical questions about our current system and identifying its limitations as well as discussing the ineffectiveness of false solutions that seem to offer something new but would actually preserve the status quo The concept of degrowth is then fully introduced along with a discussion of core principles and goals as well as major critiques and questions The book explores what living in a degrowth society would entail and the policies needed to support degrowth Finally the work concludes by examining the opportunities and challenges for degrowth and a successful transition to a sustainable steady state economy This book provides an advanced introduction to the environmental issues around degrowth for students scholars and activists interested in economic alternatives sustainability and the environment

Macrosociology Frank W. Elwell, 2015-12-03 Social theorists dwell on the canonical works of Marx Weber and Durkheim but little on the theories of the major contemporary macrotheorists This book fills this gap with a focus on the work of four modern theorists who have taken on the larger questions spawned by classical social theory C Wright Mills Marvin Harris Immanuel Wallerstein and Gerhard Lenski have examined such phenomena and processes as the rise and impact of capitalism the centralization and enlargement of authority inequality and the historical intensification of production and populations Borrowing what is useful from the classics as well as relying on contemporary practitioners and empirical evidence each theorist adds his own insights and interpretations in constructing a comprehensive perspective of sociocultural stability and change This book fully synthesizes and documents each perspective using language and examples that resonate with the general reader A short biography on each theorist is also provided

Human Resources and Demographics, 1980 Innovative Start-Ups and the Distribution of Human Capital Ronney Aamoucke, 2016-09-14 This book contributes to our understanding of the reasons for the uneven geographic emergence and distribution of innovative start ups and human capital analyzing the role of the regional knowledge base and specifically academic knowledge Using extensive datasets from West German regions and advanced econometric tools it confirms a strong relationship between the presence of higher education institutions and the emergence of innovative start ups It also shows that the influence increases in direct relation with the innovativeness of the respective start up and that certain fields of knowledge are more influential than others in fostering innovative start ups In a second step the multidimensional concept of quality of life is used to explain the geography of human capital across West German regions Based on these empirical findings the book shares valuable insights for higher education and regional development policy Population Growth, Factor Accumulation, and Productivity Lant Pritchett, 2016 New insights from new data on the relationship between population growth factor accumulation and productivity In research on how population growth affects economic performance some researchers stress that population growth reduces the natural resources and capital physical and human per worker while other researchers stress how greater population size and density affect productivity Despite these differing theoretical predictions the empirical literature has focused mainly on the relationship between population growth and output per person or crude proxies for factor accumulation It has not decomposed the effect of population through factor accumulation and the effect through productivity Pritchett uses newly created cross country time series data on physical capital stocks and the educational stock of the labor force to establish six findings There is no correlation between the growth of capital per worker and population growth The common practice of using investment rates as a proxy for capital stock growth rates is completely unjustified as the two are uncorrelated across countries There is either no correlation or a weak positive correlation between the growth of years of schooling per worker and the population growth rate Enrollment rates are even worse as a crude proxy for the expansion of the educational capital stock as the two are negatively correlated There is no correlation or a weak negative correlation between measures of total factor productivity growth and population growth Nearly all of the weak correlation between the growth of output per person and population growth is the result of shifts in participation in the labor force not of changes in output per worker This paper is a product of the Poverty and Human Resources Division Policy Research Department

Krugman's Macroeconomics for AP* Margaret Ray, David A. Anderson, 2010-07-30 Adapted from Macroeconomics Second edition by Paul Krugman and Robin Wells Histories of Productivity Peter-Paul Bänziger, Mischa Suter, 2016-07-15 Global issues such as climate change and the aftermath of the 2008 financial crisis have spurred interest in thinking about the history of the modern economy that goes beyond disciplinary economic history This book contributes to the cultural history of capitalism and its different regimes of productivity by pursuing the perspective of body history and by providing a global scope Throughout modernity the body served as a fundamental albeit essentially changing linchpin for both the organization of economic practices and for intellectual reflections on the economy In particular it was the pivotal interface to render notions of economic productivity intelligible The book explores this central thesis in a range of case studies drawing on source material from West Africa Europe Mexico and the US Framed by a theoretically informed introduction which also provides a conceptual history of notions of productivity and by an afterword that brings the approaches explored in this volume into dialogue with scholarship inspired by Marx and Foucault the individual chapters tackle the concept of productivity from a wide array of angles each illuminating the promises and problems of a cultural take on the history of economic productivity The Earth as Transformed by Human Action B. L. Turner, William C. Clark, Robert W. Kates, John F. Richards, Jessica T. Mathews, William B. Meyer, 1993-01-29 The Earth as Transformed by Human Action is the culmination of a mammoth undertaking involving the examination of the toll our continual strides forward technical and social take on our world The purpose of such a study is to document the changes in the biosphere that have taken place over the last 300 years to contrast global patterns of change to those appearing on a regional level and to explain the major human forces that have driven these changes The first section deals strictly with the major human forces of the past 300 years and the second is a detailed account of the transformations of the global environment wrought by human action The final section examines a range of perspectives and theories that purport to explain human actions with regard to the biosphere Environment

Peter H. Raven, Linda R. Berg, David M. Hassenzahl, 2012-12-17 Raven's 8th edition of Environment offers more detailed content than the Visualizing text for a better understanding and integration of the core environmental systems and to view and analyze the role those systems play Shorter but still comprehensive coverage focuses on ethical decision making and key local environmental science issues requiring readers to think critically about the course material outside of the classroom Other features include brief text in the comprehensive segment extensive chapter pedagogy to help reinforce the systems approach more opportunities to think critically about the how systems intersect and fit together and new data interpretation questions at the end of each chapter The Imminent Collapse of America and of the Whole Western Civilization

Angelo Bertolo, 2012-09-25 In the 5000 years of the history that we know great empires grew and fell according to certain patterns that repeat themselves like laws of nature The USA rose and grew to prominence in the world reached its zenith in 1945 with the military victory and with the atom bomb but is not destined to stay there forever The book tries to draw the attention to the signs of decadence that match the patterns of the decadence of previous empires in history and the patterns of growth of progress in other cultural milieus very few pundits in America and in the western media in general seem to be aware of this fact The birth rates keep diminishing in America and are very low in Europe In other civilisations the birth rates have been high and those countries count more in the world today politically and economically than a few generations ago In addition the irrational and passionate attitude of those peoples including the aggressive suicidal attitude with religious and political connotations is a sign of progress for them Those people who are in favour of family planning programs and of a more relaxed morality are acting against the general interests of their countries Environmental Geology Today ,
