Family Formation in an Age of Nascent Capitalism David Z. Levine, 2013-09-11 Family Formation in an Age of Nascent Capitalism deals with the impact of early capitalism on the strategies of family formation among four sets of English villagers in the period before the wholesale switch over to factory industry This era roughly speaking from 1550 to 1850 has been variously described as traditional preindustrial and more recently protoindustrial However the author sees it as a stage in the transition from feudalism to capitalism a halfway house The book begins by placing the study in the context of the larger debate concerning nascent capitalism early rural industrialization and the growth of population Separate chapters then discuss the growth and structure of the framework knitting industry in Shepshed and the social implications of this economic change the patterns of immigration population turnover and generational replacement in Shepshed and Bottesford and industrial involution and domestic organization in 1851 Subsequent chapters deal with the demographic implications of rural industrialization the relationship between economic opportunity and family formation and relationships among the expectation of marriage bridal pregnancy and illegitimacy      The Political Economy of Irish Marriage Practices 1790-1820 Marie Butler-Schuster, 1995      Economic Sociology Arthur L. Stinchcombe, 2013-10-02 Economic Sociology introduces the student to the main conceptions of economic sociology illustrates the application of the concepts and theories of economic sociology and critiques the growing literature that uses economic sociology in the explanation of macroscopic social phenomena mostly deriving from the Marxist tradition The book features chapters that discuss the ecological analysis of societies how economic objectives get translated into requirements on social relations the basic structure of claims on the flow of benefits from economic enterprises the reproduction of relations of production and the general problem of creating a set of roles for new generations to occupy in such a way as to reproduce the basic structure of the economic system and the shaping of the flow of children's socialization and placement and of adult careers so that the roles will be filled. The text will be interesting to political scientists, economists, and historians. The Cumulative Book Index, 1978. A world list of books in the English language.

Transitions Tamara K. Hareven, 2013-10-02. Transitions: The Family and the Life Course in Historical Perspective covers a life course analysis in relation to history and the application of the approach to a common data set for late 19th century American communities in Essex County, Massachusetts. The book discusses the life course development in relation to historical change, the historical changes in age configurations along the life course, and the use of demographic scaffolding for analyzing family behavior and life course transitions. The text also describes models of economic behavior, the historical patterns, the choices that individuals and families make in the timing of different life course transitions, and the scheduling of life course transitions. Marriage, children's entry into and exit from school, patterns of women's entry into the labor force, and the effect on household structure of transitions into old age are also considered. Historians, sociologists, and demographers will find the book invaluable.

People, Population Change and Policies Charlotte Höhn, Dragana Avramov, Irena E. Kotowska, 2008-03-08. This two-volume work explores social cohesion and the demographic challenges of low birth rates and population aging. Authors approach the topic from the perspective of citizens and policymakers, analyzing attitudes from 14 European countries on demographic trends and expectations towards private networks and public policies. Volume 2 focuses on family and family change, value of children, fertility intentions, and views on work-family balance.

Portuguese Brazil James Lang, 2013-09-11. Portuguese Brazil: How Participatory Evaluation Research Affects the Management Control Process of a Multinational Nonprofit Organization Gail J. Fults, 2017-02-03. This title, first published in 1993, addresses two questions: can evaluation research function as a surrogate market in non-profit organisations to measure value and assess the goods and services they provide? And second, can the findings from an evaluation process be incorporated as a service accomplishment element into the accounting information published by non-profit organisations? This title will be of interest to students of business studies.
