Regional Problem Stuart Holland, 1976-01-01 Unravelling desertification M. Juntti, 2023-08-28 This book analyses processes of desertification from a social science perspective and unravels the policy related to drivers of desertification Desertification is addressed both as a concept surrounded by a multitude of different discourses and as a tangible unsustainable process that is connected to a complex set of policies and changing land management practices The focus is on Southern Europe where desertification has been a long standing problem in many areas and where in some places the loss of productive capacity has worsened considerably over the last few decades By focusing on four specific case study areas in Portugal Spain Italy and Greece the scope of the book will cover the human dimension of desertification exploring in particular how the framework of existing policies has affected land management decisions and desertification processes The emphasis will be on how policies may have contributed to desertification alleviation and mitigation as well as to a worsening of desertification processes By using an actor network approach the book specifically investigates the importance of networks of actors that shape the nature and direction of policies that affect desertification processes In this sense this book aims at providing a first glance into the complex policy economic and socio cultural networks that operate at the local regional and national levels in areas of Southern Europe affected by desertification and to analyse how these networks hinder or promote the implementation of policies aimed at alleviating the threat of desertification With its broad remit this exciting book will appeal to many different audiences not only including academics and students of various disciplines but also practitioners at the local regional Mediterranean and international e g EU spatial levels in a variety of fields such as environmental and agricultural policy making agricultural extension services farming organisations environmental NGOs media representatives and many other environmental stakeholder groups

Rural migrants in urban setting G. Beijer, 2012-12-06 The migration of country dwellers towards the urban areas has been a most important factor in the development of the West European society in which we live today Therefore those engaged in research and policy making in the social field must acquire a better understanding of this form of migration if they are to deal effectively with a number of the problems confronting them This is particularly true since the schemes for European integration which are going ahead so rapidly are sure to produce new patterns of migration At a meeting of the F A O Working Group on Rural Sociology held in Oslo in 1960 it was suggested that an inventory should be made of all available data and studies on the subject of migration in Europe This suggestion was taken up by the European Society for Rural Sociology and the Netherlands Ministry of Social Work which after deliberating together decided to ask the Dutch expert Dr G Beijer to draw up such an inventory under their joint auspices As secretary of the Research Group for European Migration Problems R E M P Dr Beijer has been engaged for many years in an intensive study of the phenomenon of migration

The Encyclopædia Britannica James Louis Garvin, 1926 A Companion to the Archaeology of the Roman Republic Jane DeRose Evans, 2013-03-29 A Companion to the Archaeology of the Roman Republic offers a diversity of perspectives to explore how differing approaches and methodologies can contribute to a greater understanding of the formation of the Roman Republic. Brings together the experiences and ideas of archaeologists from around the world with multiple backgrounds and areas of interest. Offers a vibrant exploration of the ways in which archaeological methods can be used to explore different elements of the Roman Republican period. Demonstrates that the Republic was not formed in a vacuum but was influenced by non-Latin speaking cultures from throughout the Mediterranean region. Enables archaeological thinking in this area to be made accessible both to a more general audience and as a valuable addition to existing discourse. Investigates the archaeology of the Roman Republican period with reference to material culture, landscape, technology, identity, and empire.
