

Introduction

This document is for all UAL Awarding Body (UAL) approved centres; colleges, training providers and other settings where our qualifications are being delivered in the 2020/21 academic year. It contains guidance designed to support centres, given the impact of COVID-19, in delivering and capturing student work in a digital format which can be shared with UAL as evidence of achievement. All UAL approved centres are required to make student work and associated documentation available digitally in 2021 and this document includes all the necessary guidance and video tutorials to support the facilitation of this in centres.

Working digitally 2020/21

In order to facilitate digital portfolios accessible by UAL, centres must prepare by embedding the following requirements into their approach to both formative projects and summative final projects:

- make provision for students to capture and submit work in a digital capacity (Digital Student Portfolios).
- embed the teaching of appropriate digital portfolio creation into delivery.
- negotiate, check and agree with the student that any Project Proposals submitted by students in the planning stages of a project are appropriate and achievable in a remote capacity.
- ensure digital student portfolios capture the creative journey, the creative process and conceptual/thematic ideas as well as any practical skills or outcomes.
- ensure that student work and associated assessment feedback and tracking records are available digitally.

Building a Digital Student Portfolio (DSP)

What might a digital student portfolio look like?

A digital student portfolio must show the summative final unit/project in its entirety. Centres must allow any work produced throughout the project to be presented by the student. The entire creative process, including decisions and revisions made along the way should be included as all are valuable assessment points and provide a wider range of opportunity to affirm the grade(s) awarded. Students should be encouraged to record their creative process in ways most suitable to them and their work. This might include filmed extracts (captured on a phone or other devices), still images, slide presentations, audio recordings, animations, text documents (Word/Pdf), links to work hosted on external sites (e.g. Instagram or YouTube) amongst others. Any request to access student work by UAL will be provided by the centre via a shared link to the centre's own cloud-based system, so file sizes and types are not specified, allowing the student full creative freedom.
