Shaping the Wild David Elias, 2023-04-27 What can one Welsh hill farm tell us about how we can help nature thrive In this captivating debut conservationist David Elias explores one a hill farm in Snowdonia National Park and what it can show us about the realities of farming and looking after nature in this environment As he visits throughout the seasons he forms a deep relationship with the land and the people who have worked upon it discovering their history and traditions current lifestyle and thoughts on their future He also explores the many farm s many habitats and the wildlife that can be found upon them and shows how this has been influenced by changing farming practices over the generations Through lyrical prose and first hand conversations with farmers Elias also shows what current policies have achieved and not achieved and why it s so important that we get a better understanding of the realities and challenges of farming if we are to truly going to reconcile this vital industry while also looking after nature

Wild Fell Lee Schofield, 2022-02-24 I found myself turning the pages with an inward leap of joy Isabella Tree WINNER of the Richard Jefferies Award for Nature Writing Shortlisted for the James Cropper Wainwright Prize for Conservation Exquisite GUARDIAN It was a tragic day for the nation s wildlife when England s last and loneliest golden eagle died in an unmarked spot among the remote eastern fells of the Lake District But the fight to restore the landscape had already begun Lee Schofield ecologist and site manager for RSPB Haweswater is leading efforts to breathe life back into two hill farms and their thirty square kilometres of sprawling upland habitat Informed by the land its turbulent history and the people who have shaped it Lee and his team are repairing damaged wetlands meadows and woods Each year the landscape is becoming richer wilder and better able to withstand the shocks of a changing climate But in the contested landscape of the Lake District change is not always welcomed and success relies on finding a balance between rewilding and respecting cherished farming traditions This is not only a story of an ecosystem in recovery it is also the story of Lee s personal connection to place and the highs and lows of working for nature amid fierce opposition British Wildlife

the Turn of the Century Diane Barnes, Jack Barnes, 1995-10-01 Before her death in 1910 Nettie Cummings Maxim chronicled the people landscapes and animals of a typical Maine farm at Bird Hill in Bethel at the turn of the century In a time before mass media her world consisted almost entirely of her family and farm This intimate familiarity with her immediate world and a degree of cultural isolation allowed Nettie to explore and capture on film the details of farm life through the seasons and the innocence and wisdom in the eyes of the children whose lives were so closely entwined with life on a rural Maine hill farm After one look at her photographs her innate artistic talent becomes immediately apparent her use of natural light the composition of her images and her eye for detail lend a tremendously beautiful evocative quality to her images She turned the long exposures mandated by film at the turn of the century to her advantage and somehow manages to create the illusion of motion in her photographs Through her cameras Nettie recorded the world that was so endearing to her a world that has gone largely undocumented by photography In doing so she has given immortality to the people buildings and even the animals that were part of her life and her microcosm of society nearly a century ago as well as giving us a rare insight into the intricacies of daily life in the nearby communities of Locke s Mills and Greenwood Allow her to lead you back into life in rural Maine at the turn of the century it is a journey worth making and one that you will never forget
