How to Read African American Literature offers a series of provocations to unsettle the predominant assumptions readers make when encountering post Civil Rights black fiction Foregrounding the large body of literature and criticism that grapples with legacies of the slave past Aida Levy Hussen s argument develops on two levels as a textual analysis of black historical fiction and as a critical examination of the reading practices that characterize the scholarship of our time Drawing on psychoanalysis memory studies and feminist and queer theory Levy Hussen examines how works by Toni Morrison David Bradley Octavia Butler Charles Johnson and others represent and mediate social injury and collective grief In the criticism that surrounds these novels she identifies two major interpretive approaches therapeutic reading premised on the assurance that literary confrontations with historical trauma will enable psychic healing in the present and prohibitive reading anchored in the belief that fictions of returning to the past are dangerous and to be avoided Levy Hussen argues that these norms have become overly restrictive standing in the way of a more supple method of interpretation that recognizes and attends to the indirect unexpected inconsistent and opaque workings of historical fantasy and desire Moving beyond the question of whether literature must heal or abandon historical wounds Levy Hussen proposes new ways to read African American literature now From Bourgeois to Boogie Vershawn Ashanti Young,2011-04-15 Examines how generations of African Americans perceive proclaim and name the combined performance of race and class across genres
