Reinvention of Theatre in Sixteenth-century Europe T.F. Earle, 2017-07-05 The sixteenth century was an exciting period in the history of European theatre In the Iberian Peninsula Italy France Germany and England writers and actors experimented with new dramatic techniques and found new publics They prepared the way for the better known dramatists of the next century but produced much work which is valuable in its own right in Latin and in their own vernaculars The popular theatre of the Middle Ages gave endless material for reinvention by playwrights and the legacy of the ancient world became a spur to creativity in tragedy and comedy As soon as readers and audiences had taken in the new plays they were changed again taking new forms as the first experiments were themselves modified and reinvented Writers constantly adapted the texts of plays to meet new requirements These and other issues are explored by a group of international experts from a comparative perspective giving particular emphasis to one of the great European comic dramatists the Portuguese Gil

Creating East and West Nancy Bisaha, 2010-12-01 As the Ottoman Empire advanced westward from the fourteenth to the sixteenth centuries humanists responded on a grand scale leaving behind a large body of fascinating yet understudied works These compositions included Crusade orations and histories ethnographic historical and religious studies of the Turks epic poetry and even tracts on converting the Turks to Christianity Most scholars have seen this vast literature as atypical of Renaissance humanism Nancy Bisaha now offers an in depth look at the body of Renaissance humanist works that focus not on classical or contemporary Italian subjects but on the Ottoman Empire Islam and the Crusades Throughout Bisaha probes these texts to reveal the significant role Renaissance writers played in shaping Western views of self and other Medieval concepts of Islam were generally informed and constrained by religious attitudes and rhetoric in which Muslims were depicted as enemies of the faith While humanist thinkers of the Renaissance did not move entirely beyond this stance Creating East and West argues that their understanding was considerably more complex in that it addressed secular and cultural issues marking a watershed between the medieval and modern Taking a close look at a number of texts Bisaha expands current notions of Renaissance humanism and of the history of cross cultural perceptions Engaging both traditional methods of intellectual history and more recent methods of cross cultural studies she demonstrates that modern attitudes of Western societies toward other cultures emerged not during the later period of expansion and domination but rather as a defensive intellectual reaction to a sophisticated and threatening power to the East
