Gallacher, Helen Damico, 1989-06-26 This study explores the art of interpretation in works of history art music and literature from the medieval period The authors demonstrate that the search for meaning was a primary concern of medieval authors and that the history of medieval thought from Augustine to Aquinas and Ockham illustrates the dialectic of question and answer that is the foundation of hermeneutics This study is the first to offer a diversity of hermeneutic approaches and themes in the context of medieval works The study s interdisciplinary approach to the medieval works considered invites analysis from scholars and critics in all areas of medieval studies The breadth of scope in addressing the art of interpretation in the various disciplines also provides a valuable general introduction to medieval culture Socioliterary Practice in Late Medieval England Helen Barr, 2001-12-06 Socioliterary Practice in Late Medieval England bridges the disciplines of literature and history by examining various kinds of literary language as examples of social practice Readings of both English and Latin texts from the late fourteenth and early fifteenth centuries are grounded in close textual study which reveals the social positioning of these works and the kinds of ideological work they can be seen to perform Distinctive new readings of texts emerge which challenge received interpretations of literary history and late medieval culture Canonical authors and texts such as Chaucer Gower and Pearl are discussed alongside the less familiar Clanvowe anonymous alliterative verse and Wycliffite prose tracts The Poetry of the Alliterative Revival , Routledge Revivals: Medieval England (1998) Paul E. Vance Smith,2003-01-01 An innovative work of both economic anthropology and literary history Arts of Possession draws on philosophical theoretical literary historical and archival sources and insights to situate the household at the center of the social and cultural imagination of fourteenth century England D Vance Smith argues that in a period commonly represented as precapitalist there actually existed a sophisticated economic discourse and that discourse underlies common forms of representation and the writing of literary texts His work provides a new historiography of capital and of the development of the relation between economic sophistication and cultural practices Smith reads well known and less appreciated works such as Winner and Waster Sir Launfal The Canterbury Tales and Piers Plowman for what they can tell us about the surpluses and economies that drew the medieval imagination and about the complex ethics of possession at the heart of the fourteenth century household In bringing this to light Smith's book itself becomes an eloquent meditation on the poetics and ethics of possession

Machines of the Mind Katharine Breen, 2021-05-11 In Machines of the Mind Katharine Breen proposes that medieval personifications should be understood neither as failed novelistic characters nor as instruments of heavy handed didacticism She argues that personifications are instead powerful tools for thought that help us to remember and manipulate complex ideas testing them against existing moral and political paradigms Specifically different types of medieval personification should be seen as corresponding to positions in the rich and nuanced medieval debate over universals Breen identifies three different types of personification Platonic Aristotelian and Prudentian that gave medieval writers a surprisingly varied spectrum with which to paint their characters Through a series of new readings of major authors and works from Plato to Piers Plowman Breen illuminates how medieval personifications embody the full range of positions between philosophical realism and nominalism varying according to the convictions of individual authors and the purposes of individual works Recalling Gregory the Great's reference to machinae mentis machines of the mind Breen demonstrates that medieval writers applied personification with utility and subtlety employing methods of personification as tools that serve different functions Machines of the Mind offers insight for medievalists working at the crossroads of religion philosophy and literature as well as for scholars interested in literary character building and gendered relationships among characters readers and texts beyond the Middle Ages

Money, Commerce, and Economics in Late Medieval English Literature Craig E. Bertolet, Robert Epstein, 2018-02-07 This is the first collection of essays dedicated to the topics of money and economics in the English literature of the late Middle Ages These essays explore ways that late medieval economic thought informs contemporary English texts and apply modern modes of economic analysis to medieval literature In so doing they read the importance and influence of historical records of practices as aids to contextualizing these texts They also apply recent modes of economic history as a means to understand the questions the texts ask about economics trade and money Collectively these papers argue that both medieval and modern economic thought are key to valuable historical contextualization of medieval literary texts but that this criticism can be advanced only if we also recognize the specificity of the economic and social conditions of late medieval England
