Transformative Communication Studies Omar Swartz,2008-01-01 This interdisciplinary collection of essays charts intersections between communication cultural studies and a variety of emergent emancipatory and liberatory discourses Every essay attempts in one way or another to speak to the following questions What would a theory of liberation look like that is premised on a communication view of the world How would such a view expand and even redefine our understanding of liberation Finally how would such a view enlarge our understanding of what is collectively communally and organizationally possible In other words the chapters articulate what can be loosely considered a humanist theory of communication and praxis The goal is to move beyond discourses of liberation that are grounded in essentialist assumptions and to move the conversation toward an engaged criticism on cultural and social levels that facilitates and encourages progressive action This edited collection thus has as its goal a theory of human liberation grounded in communication as a resource for social and spiritual transformation The chapters comprise a mix of conceptual and applied studies that interrogate the communicative practices that naturalize our hierarchical world reifying and stultifying our moral and political imaginations As an antidote to this problem the contributors consider the importance of uncertainty and contingency in the development of human potential Rather than fearing uncertainty and contingency and allowing that fear to control us contributors argue that we should find within these conditions the source of our humanity and the strength to question and resist unjust social reifications When we do this we will rediscover the power of communication and regain an agency and control over our lives We then can start the difficult but humanizing process of constructing the
