Legal Secrets Kim Lane Scheppele, 1988-11-15 Does the seller of a house have to tell the buyer that the water is turned off twelve hours a day Does the buyer of a great quantity of tobacco have to inform the seller that the military blockade of the local port which had depressed tobacco sales and lowered prices is about to end Courts say yes in the first case no in the second How can we understand the difference in judgments And what does it say about whether the psychiatrist should disclose to his patient s girlfriend that the patient wants to kill her Kim Lane Scheppele answers the question Which secrets are legal secrets and what makes them so She challenges the economic theory of law which argues that judges decide cases in ways that maximize efficiency and she shows that judges use equality as an important principle in their decisions In the course of thinking about secrets Scheppele also explores broader questions about judicial reasoning how judges find meaning in legal texts and how they infuse every fact summary with the values of their legal culture Finally the specific insights about secrecy are shown to be consistent with a general moral theory of law that indicates what the content of law should be if the law is to be legitimate a theory that sees legal justification as the opportunity to attract consent This is more than a book about secrets It is also a book about the limits of an economic view of law Ultimately it is a work in constructive legal theory one that draws on moral philosophy sociology economics and political theory to develop a new view of legal interpretation and legal morality

The Food Section Kimberly Wilmot Voss, 2014-04-24 Food blogs are everywhere today but for generations information and opinions about food were found in the food sections of newspapers in communities large and small Until the early 1970s these sections were housed in the women's pages of newspapers where women could hold an authoritative voice The food editors often a mix of trained journalist and home economist reported on everything from nutrition news to features on the new chef in town They wrote recipes and solicited ideas from readers The sections reflected the trends of the time and the cooks of the community The editors were local celebrities judging cooking contests and getting calls at home about how to prepare a Thanksgiving turkey They were consumer advocates and reporters for food safety and nutrition They helped make James Beard and Julia Child household names as the editors wrote about their television appearances and reviewed their cookbooks These food editors laid the foundation for the food community that Nora Ephron described in her classic 1968 essay The Food Establishment and eventually led to the food communities of today Included in the chapters are profiles of such food editors as Jane Nickerson Jeanne Voltz and Ruth Ellen Church who were unheralded pioneers in the field as well as Cecily Brownstone Poppy Cannon and Clementine Paddleford who are well known today an analysis of their work demonstrates changes in the country's culinary history The book concludes with a look at how the women's pages folded at the same time that home economics saw its field transformed and with thoughts about the foundation that these women laid for the food journalism of today

There's only one problem: The Titan Operatives are currently tied up with their own missions. Unwilling to leave the NYPD hanging, Jared Westin cashes in a favor from Commander Jaxon Wall. He wants to send one of his own men to help her. Chase Anderson. Will Chase turn out to be yet another man who thinks Billie is less of a shot just because she's a woman?
