

Saving Social Security

Without action, Social Security's Trust Fund will be depleted by 2033, resulting in automatic 23% benefit cuts. Policymakers have options — but must take action urgently:

SOLUTIONS

Options for a reform package framework:

- Gradually raise the full retirement age to 69, preserving the option for early receipt of benefits
- Implement modest additional means testing for high-income beneficiaries

- Gradually raise the maximum earned income subject to the payroll tax to cover 90% earnings
- Phase-in reforms to provide time for workers to adjust their retirement planning

- Remove work disincentives for retirees
- Consider diversifying Social Security Trust Fund investments beyond Treasury securities
- Reform CPI calculation of cost-of-living adjustments

- Cover newly hired state and local workers
- To evaluate these options, establish a Bipartisan Congressional Commission on Fiscal Responsibility

Mr.Jan Walliser,1999-07-01 Analysts agree that raising national saving is one of the key objectives of social security reform in the United States Hence to judge the merits of proposals requires a comparison of saving responses The paper outlines the difficulties involved in making those comparisons which arise from the unsustainability of the current social security system and the uncertainty regarding the use of projected budget surpluses Building on previously developed arguments it discusses three typical reform plans and also draws some conclusions about the relationship between social security reform and the long run sustainability of fiscal policy      Ideas for Advancing the Upcoming Debate on Saving the Social Security System
